To correct flatulence and indigestion

The dry condition of Vita-Weat, the British wholewheat crispbread, is of distinct advantage in cases of flatulence, in which moist foods are largely contra-indicated; and the crispness and hardness of the slices ensure proper mastication and thorough salivation of the food bolus, which is rendered completely assimilable by the gelatinization of the starch granules and the thorough disintegration of the roughage content.

Vita-Weat combines the nutritive and health-giving properties of the best wholemeal bread with the palatability of the white loaf. The whole of the wheat berry is used in its preparation, and the manufacturing processes—which conserve all the vitamins—are entirely physical and thermal. Analysis gives the following comparison with wholemeal bread:

	Vita-Weat (The Lancet)	Wholemeal Bread (The Practitioner)
Moisture	4.90	45.00
Protein	10.32	6.30
Fat	7.90	1.20
Carbohydrates, etc.	74.28	46.30
Mineral matter, ash, etc.	2.60	1.20
	100%	100%
Calorific Value per lb.	1846	1105

Here, then, are all the foodstuffs essential to vigorous health, with the roughage required to stimulate natural peristalsis without undue irritation of the intestinal mucous membrane.

Vita-Weat is entirely British—made by a British firm with British labour, of only British wheat, British-milled and British-baked.

Light

The "Royston" Shadowless Lamp is equipped with Emergency Delay Device which definitely eliminates all possibility of trouble should the major lamp develop a fault or the mains supply fail. Six pilot lamps are brought into use, equal in power to the main bulb.

Illumination is produced by scientifically designed reflecting surfaces, no lenses being employed. This improved principle of the provides an intense, shadowless, cool light. Diffusion is obtained by a 36 in. reflector with a specially treated surface of white corrected silvered glass with a chromium plated Parabolic top reflector housing the lamp. Complete diffusion is obtained by glass fitted to prevent filament lines being thrown down on the object.

The "Royston" Shadowless Lamp is the most efficient form of Theatre Lighting. It is easy to instal, and maintenance is exceptionally low.

ESSENTIAL HOSPITAL EQUIPMENT

Cleanliness, food purity, economy and work reduction are obviously important factors in hospital management. Electrolux products help tremendously in these matters and therefore merit enquiry.

1 The Electrolux Hygienic Cleaning System.

Far ahead of all other cleaning methods. It cleans floors and furnishings rapidly and quietly. It also purifies the air with a special fitment. Other features are Moth Destruction, Disinfectant Spraying, and an Indicator which shews when to empty the dust bag.

2 The Electrolux Automatic Refrigerator.

Operates automatically, without machinery, in permanent silence by gas, electricity or even paraffin.

3 The Electrolux Water Softener.

Soft water effects remarkable economies on soap, fuel, tea, etc. "Fur" formation in pipes and boilers is prevented and "scaling" eliminated. Non-electrical and non-mechanical, Electrolux Water Softeners entirely soften the water supply.

4 The Electrolux Floor Polisher.

Imparts a beautiful and enduring gloss to all hard floors, saves much labour and economises in polish.

FOREWORD

By the Hon. Sir ARTHUR STANLEY, G.B.E., C.B., M.V.O.

President of The British Hospitals Association and Chairman of the Joint Council of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society.

THE fifth edition of "The Hospitals Year-Book" and the fifteenth of the survey of the finances and work of the Voluntary Hospitals of Great Britain appears a little earlier this year than usual.

The Editorial Committee is again indebted to Sir Charles Harris, late permanent Head of the Finance Department, War Office, for a considered review of the finances of the hospitals as a whole. The review, in spite of a note of warning, presents much the same picture as in previous years. A credit balance of £922,899 does not spell immediate bankruptcy. At the same time it is impossible to disguise the fact that whatever the financial situation may be, administratively the Voluntary Hospitals have reached an important stage in their history. Their annual conference, which was held in June 1934 in London, drew attention to the fact that they were no longer in sole possession of the health field, that new relationships were rapidly growing up, and that a larger measure of joint action than that to which they had been accustomed in the past was urgently necessary. This friendly warning has not been without effect, and the Voluntary Hospitals, through their representative Association, are making efforts to meet these new responsibilities and to bring about arrangements between themselves and the municipal authorities to the benefit of the health of the nation as a whole and to the pockets of all concerned, whether as voluntary donors or as rate-payers.

The Voluntary Hospitals are learning also the value of joint action in matters of a domestic character. They are able now to bring forward before the proper authorities their views and their wishes as a whole. They already have secured a measure of recognition, through Acts of Parliament, of the work which they do in connection with road traffic accidents. They now have a Bill before Parliament to enable hospitals that desire to do so and in whose trust deeds there are restrictive clauses, to obtain power to establish beds for paying patients—possibly one of the most crying hospital needs of the present time. They have, however, in spite of repeated representations, been so far unable to secure any relief in the matter of milk control, which has laid a heavy burden upon them and has placed what is tantamount to a 15 per cent. tax upon one of the most vital of all foods.

Other subjects under consideration are group buying, assessment, insurance, legacy duty and so on. Great attention is also being paid to the subject of hospital planning and two important committees are sitting which may be expected to report in the near future.

On the whole, there is every reason to believe that the Voluntary Hospitals will be successful in adjusting themselves to the altered circumstances of the times. They have far too long and honourable a record and far too firm a hold on the affections of the English race to be lightly set aside.

April, 1935.

FINANCIAL REVIEW

By SIR CHARLES HARRIS, G.B.E., K.C.B.

(late Permanent Head of the Finance Department, War Office)

Hon. Financial Consultant to the Central Bureau of Hospital Information.

THE Tables for 1933 cover 158 hospitals in the London area, and 820 outside as against 815 for 1932. There is again some advance to record in the date of publication, but a regrettable falling off in the percentage of hospitals (outside London) whose accounts were delivered within 6 months (68 as against 72 for 1932) and within 9 months (86 as compared with 92 for 1931) though at 9 months there was a slight improvement as compared with the 1932 figure of 83 per cent. When the Tables were closed in November, there were 54 hospitals (1,555 beds) in England and Wales, 13 (316 beds) in Scotland and 15 (1,738 beds) in Ireland, or in all no less than 82 hospitals with 3,609 beds which were in default. So much for punctuality.

The second requirement essential for the utility of the Year-Book is standardisation of accounts, making it possible to tabulate in the prescribed form the statistical results shown by the accounts rendered. Though under this head there was some appreciable progress in the Provinces, the very important Tables (16 to 19) showing analysed costs for in- and out-patients are still disfigured by numerous blanks even there, while in Scotland and Ireland the failure is almost total. The object of these Tables has been well stated by the authorities of King Edward's Hospital Fund for London to be to "assist Hospital Managers to see whether at their hospital the cost appears to be high and in what class of expenditure the source of the excess is to be found; to reduce it wherever it cannot be justified, or to justify it wherever it cannot be reduced." In London even the smallest hospitals find no difficulty in giving the necessary figures. In the Provinces, there are still several hundred hospitals which do not give the essential analysis of costs, though for a large number of them a total is shown. In Scotland, out of 106 hospitals rendering accounts in time to be included, only 13 give analysed figures and 11 others totals, while in Ireland out of 43 hospitals not one gives the analysis and only 4 give totals. Investigation shows that the root of the trouble lies in the failure to record—or at least to estimate—the costs of the out-patient department separately from those of the beds. Notwithstanding this, many hospitals profess to show the cost of an in-patient per week, by charging the whole expenditure of the hospital on to the beds. I have before me, as I write, the Report of a great hospital in a large city, with an income of some £100,000 a year and out-patient attendances numbering over 200,000 yearly, which presents its results in this way. Taking 1s. 6d. as a reasonable figure for the cost of an out-patient attendance in hospitals of corresponding status elsewhere, the error thus introduced into its costings is of the order of £15,000 in the year; yet apart from this it is evident from the Report that its standard of accountancy is high. In Table 16 the Editor of the Year-Book has preferred to show no figure at all against the name of this hospital, clearly because the figures available could only mislead. It is greatly to be hoped that, attention having been drawn to the very special importance of separating the out-patient costs, and the ease with which this can be done, every hospital concerned will make a point of carrying through this reform without further delay. If in any of the minor hospitals there should be a doubt about methods of separation, the Central Bureau exists for the purpose of giving aid.

The financial results of the year as a whole are again remarkably good, especially when it is remembered that in 1933, though it saw the turn of the tide in our national business activity, there was no firm expectation that the improvement would last, nor did the state of the national income and expenditure justify any relief to the taxpayer. Taking Total Receipts and Expenditure for Great Britain and Ireland together, there was a net surplus of £923,000, £176,000 more than in 1932; but of this increase £124,000 was in Ireland and due to the time of distribution of sweepstake moneys rather than to any real increase of hospital revenues. For Great Britain alone the surplus was £746,000 or £52,000 more than the handsome figure of £694,000 in 1932; but the growth was entirely in the Provinces, London and Scotland showing surpluses smaller by £190,000 and £73,000 respectively than in 1932. On Maintenance Account Great Britain had a surplus of £1,028,000 for 1933, or £156,000 more than in 1932; but Ireland only just covered expenses with a margin of £1,500. [In the Tables for 1932 and 1933, all the sweepstake receipts are included as capital.] It must be remembered that the above figures are totals covering nearly a thousand separate hospitals, and though in such aggregates a deficit in one hospital disappears when balanced by a surplus in another hospital of the same area, in reality it does nothing of the sort. As shown by Tables 2 and 3 there was some further reduction in the numbers of deficits shown in all areas, both on Total and on Maintenance Accounts, except on Total Account in Scotland where the deficits grew from 25 to 28 and the average amount of a deficit grew largely (from 1,027 to 4,600), and on Maintenance Account in Ireland, where the deficits grew from 14 to 17 but the average was scarcely affected. But the existence of a deficit on Maintenance Account—the real danger-signal in hospital finance—in 34 per cent. of the hospitals in London, 25 per cent. of those in the Provinces, 25 per cent. in Scotland and 40 per cent. in Ireland, or 27 per cent. (267 hospitals) over all, with a total deficit of £252,000 on the working of a single year, shows that behind prosperous-looking totals there may be a serious state of affairs in many individual cases. Before carrying analysis further, it will be well to call to mind certain features of Voluntary Hospital finance.

Apart from their receipts for “Services Rendered,” from patients themselves or from public authorities on their behalf, and interest on invested funds, the hospitals depend partly on annual subscriptions and minor donations which average out fairly well from year to year; partly on special appeals from time to time either for new capital expenditure or extensions and improvements, or to pay off accumulated debt; and to a very considerable extent on legacies, which may be either “free” or “earmarked” by the testator for some special purpose. Taking the averages for the three years 1931–3 (Table 7) it will be seen that the total legacies per available bed (which brings the figures into relation with the gradual growth of the hospitals) are much larger in London (£36) and Scotland (£43) than in the Provinces (£20), while in Ireland (as might be expected) they are much smaller (£9). Moreover, the free legacies (which include very numerous smaller sums) are everywhere the major part of the total (which averaged 2 millions for these 3 years) and run (per available bed) much more steadily than the “earmarked,” which include from time to time very magnificent individual sums. It may be said that the position is not unlike that held by Death Duties in our national finance. A bumper estate comes in now and then; but the large duties on its break-up imply the loss of a large super-tax payer for the future; and similarly a hospital will get a large sum for capital purposes, but may be losing without replacement a generous subscriber towards maintenance. For the purpose of any short-range review of legacy income in past years, the earmarked legacies must be regarded as purely fortuitous; but not so the free. For them the figures for Provinces and Scotland from 1925 onwards (the London and Irish figures for the earlier part of even this short period not being available in the Year-Book) are as follows:—

FREE LEGACIES PER AVAILABLE BED:
PROVINCES AND SCOTLAND

Year.	Provinces.	Scotland.	Total.	Three years' average.
1925	13	29	42	—
1926	13	32	45	—
1927	19	27	46	44·3
1928	19	26	45	45·3
1929	16	31	47	46
1930	13	41	54	48·6
1931	15	36	51	50·6
1932	15	27	42	49
1933	15	27	42	45

The three years' moving average (as in the right-hand column) is a statistical method of smoothing out purely annual fluctuations and so exposing more clearly the trend of the figures; and it will be seen that there has been a continuous rise (per available bed) up to the year of crisis (1931) and a continuous fall since. If this is a coincidence merely, it is a remarkable one, especially in 1931 appearing as the pivot year; and it is not difficult to find grounds for expecting that with great reductions of national prosperity and growing over-taxation, the total of legacies received should shrink, either as a delayed consequence of the great change in the value of money from 1914 onwards, or from the still more definite impoverishment of the richer classes since 1931.

While earmarked legacies are not available as maintenance income, but rather tend to throw increased strain upon it by so frequently increasing the number of beds without adding adequate endowment for their upkeep, the free legacies, though included (as Extraordinary Income) in maintenance receipts, are in fact largely used for capital purposes. In the year of their arrival, they are exposed to the attack of the “deficiency disease” which still infests so many hospitals and in so far as they survive it they appear in the shape of surplus on Maintenance Account, and after that are never seen or heard of again by readers of the Year-Book; but they are then at the free disposal of the Governing Body for any purpose such as the paying off of debt, investment as additional endowment, or expenditure on capital services. Their fate in the critical year of arrival is shown by the following figures taken from Tables 7 and 4 :—

FREE LEGACIES AND SURPLUSES (NEAREST £ PER AVAILABLE BED) ON MAINTENANCE ACCOUNT

* Figure inapplicable : receipts from sweepstakes credited to Maintenance Account.

It will be seen that the surplus arises entirely from free legacies and in London, Scotland and Ireland, only a comparatively small portion of the Legacies survives in that form. In the Provinces, a large part of them survives, but they are smaller in total. If, therefore, the trend which has set in since 1931 should continue, the steady growth for some years past in the proportion of hospitals showing surpluses on Maintenance Account may before long be replaced by a movement in the opposite direction; and, as above indicated, a growth of "earmarked" legacies, especially if at the expense of "free," is likely to accelerate this change.

Nor is there any certainty that other sources of income will grow, to fill the threatened gap. Voluntary Gifts per available bed are shrinking everywhere, notwithstanding the increase (included under this head) in receipts from Workmen's Contributions and Contributory Schemes; the course of the more old-fashioned modes of collection, annual subscriptions and congregational collections, being definitely downward everywhere (except possibly in London, where these figures are not shown separately). Interest on invested funds, owing to the lowering of rates of interest by conversion and otherwise, shows a fall everywhere, in spite of appreciable increases in the capital sums invested, except in Ireland, where fresh investment has been on a very large scale. Receipts for services rendered (earned income) continue to increase, except in Ireland, where in 1933 a drop is shown of over £5 a bed; but in Scotland, owing to local conditions, these earnings are not more than half as much as in the Provinces, or one quarter in London. In the last year, total maintenance income from all sources, per available bed, dropped by £2 in London and the Provinces, £1 8s. in Scotland and over £2 in Ireland, where the total per bed is not much more than one-third of that in London. By its size, wealth, and the present trend of industry towards the south of England, London is in a favoured position, and Ireland is on a course of her own; but for the Provinces, in parts of which the position must already be far more serious than the average figures show, and for Scotland, whose principal sources of wealth are hard hit, the outlook is not free from anxiety. Moreover, with our inability, manifested in both our national and municipal finances, to set a limit to expenditure on any object capable of rousing enthusiasm among the spenders of other people's money, the large municipal hospitals now replacing the old "Poor-law Infirmaries" are certain to set a standard, in everything that can be bought for money, which will rise fast enough to test the staying power of the voluntary system to the utmost, and (it may well be) to attract many of the "services rendered" on which the Voluntary Hospitals are more and more depending to pay their way; and however friendly the association and rivalry with the Municipal establishments may be, an inelastic revenue at the disposal of the Voluntary may jeopardise those special virtues, not to be bought for money, of which in our social system they are the age-long repositories. The serious questions raised by the report of Lord Cozens-Hardy's Commission on Voluntary Hospitals in Liverpool, and its insistence on the need of a coherent future policy, have an application far beyond that city.

Returning now to our analysis and taking the four areas separately, London had capital receipts of £437,000 against expenditure of £620,000, showing a capital deficit of £183,000 as compared with a surplus of £151,000 in 1932. The apparent falling-off of £334,000 is merely an example of the irregularity of receipts and expenditure on capital account inherent in the system. Under Maintenance, the London income of £4,206,000 (£180,000 more than in 1932) was a new high level, while expenditure showed a rise of only .9 per cent. (£36,000) as compared with a growth of 1.1 per cent. in available beds, indicating a small decrease in expenditure per available bed.

In the Provinces, capital receipts were £1,643,000 against expenditure of £1,821,000, a deficit of £178,000; but the capital deficit of 1932 had been much larger (£491,000). Maintenance income increased by £218,000 to £7,176,000, but expenditure increased by nearly the same amount (£216,000), so that the surplus grew only by £2,000 to £636,000, which figure, however, is larger than that of any year since 1929 (£638,000). The increase of 3.4 per cent. in expenditure while beds grew by 4.6 per cent. again indicates a decrease in expenditure per available bed.

In Scotland, there was a capital surplus of £79,000 (receipts £375,000; expenditure £296,000) following a surplus of £162,000 in 1932. Maintenance income was £1,231,000 as against £1,227,000 in 1932—very inelastic, compared with a growth of 1.45 per cent. in beds—but expenditure was slightly compressed (from £1,101,000 in 1932 to £1,095,000) so that the net surplus on Maintenance Account grew by £10,000 to £136,000. And Ireland showed a capital surplus of £175,000 (sweepstakes), but maintenance income (£360,000) was almost exactly balanced by expenditure (£359,000), that expenditure showing a rise of nearly 9 per cent. over 1932 as compared with a growth of 5.7 per cent. in beds. The increase thus indicated in expenditure per available bed, which fell everywhere else, may be attributed to the difference in the economic conditions prevailing in the Free State and the United Kingdom.

We have already glanced at the course of each principal source (all areas) under which maintenance income is analysed. The only notable points relating to particular areas in this connection are that the large increase in the London total was almost entirely due to a sudden aggregate rise of £160,000 in free legacies, that in the Provinces the only principal source showing an increase per available bed was "services rendered," while in Scotland there was a smaller increase per available bed under voluntary gifts as well; and that in Ireland, amid a general shrinkage, interest from investments as well as legacies increased per bed.

Coming to expenditure, it is to be noted that owing to the failure of individual hospitals to accede to the request that they would adopt for their expenditure the standardised classification of the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts, the analysis of maintenance expenditure (Table 5) omits 95 hospitals with a total expenditure of £270,000, the Table showing in consequence a total increase of £238,000 over 1932 and a fall per available bed of £1.29, as compared with the true figures (calculated from Table 3) of £275,000 and £1.7 respectively. How these differences are spread over the several heads of analysis cannot be ascertained; but taking the Table 5 figures as they stand, and excluding Ireland where the trend (as already noticed) diverges from that in Great Britain, there were reductions per available bed under Provisions (£1.17), Domestic (.49) and minor items (.38) and increases under Salaries and Wages (.31) and Surgery, etc. (.21). By the end of 1933, the large fall in price levels (wholesale and retail) and the small fall in the general wage-level, which have been proceeding for so long, had practically come to an end, and it is opportune to review the corresponding movements in hospital expenditure over a period of years. Comparison with 1929 gives the following results:—

* The expenditure per available bed in 1929 is given in the Year-Book only to the nearest £; and the "Other" expenditure for that year, which is not given at all, has been calculated accordingly.

The general result is that expenditure per available bed since 1929 has fallen about 10s. a year in London and about £1 in the Provinces, while in Scotland it has risen about £3 10s., and this last rise is an appreciable factor in the result shown in an earlier table, that the surplus per bed in Scotland has since 1929 fallen about £10 a year. The increase under Salaries and Wages has in London and Scotland swallowed up the whole, and in the Provinces the greater part, of the saving from falling prices; which fall, somewhat paradoxically, has itself further increased pro tanto the purchasing power of the money incomes paid. Taking provisions as offering the largest scope for economy, the wholesale food index in the open market fell 29 per cent. between 1929 and 1933, whereas the fall realised per bed has been in London 16 per cent., Provinces 15 per cent., Scotland 16.5 per cent. or little more than half the market fall. Three causes may have contributed to this result: contracts made too long ahead on a falling market, bad buying in other respects and improved dietary. The figures alone cannot show in what proportions these several causes have operated; but the management of every hospital should be able to judge for itself. Under the first two heads some further reductions may be looked for; but under the third there is no going back. The general outlook, as regards expenditure as a whole, gives little promise of future reductions to balance any further shrinkage of income.

As regards in-patient and out-patient costs in individual hospitals, general and special, comment has already been made on the defective state of the Tables (16 to 19). Imperfect as they are, they give much interesting information and suggest questions to which, in course of time, they may also suggest answers. Table 16 (analysed weekly cost per in-patient in general hospitals) shows that the 12 hospitals associated with medical schools in London had an (unweighted) average weekly cost of £4 6s. 8½d., ranging from £3 6s. 5d. to £5 1s. 1d.; that 5 of them show a reduction of cost as compared with 1932 and 7 an increase, the largest reduction being 7s. 2d. and the largest increase 3s. 2d.; that they all made some reduction under Provisions except for 2 nominal increases of 1d. a week, the largest reduction being 1s. 8d.; that under Salaries and Wages the rise continued in 8 hospitals, but 1 stood fast and 3 made reductions. As 6 made reductions in 1932, the rise in these hospitals does not seem to be yet at an end.

Of the 15 Provincial hospitals associated with Medical Schools, which are not far behind the London hospitals in size, only 12 furnish complete figures. These 12 show an unweighted average weekly cost of £2 15s. 5d., the range being from £2 3s. 10d. to £3 12s. 11d., the highest being thus about 1s. a day over the lowest in London. Of the 12, 8 show reductions in weekly cost, the largest being 4s. 4d.; only one shows an increase under Provisions, and only 4 an increase under Salaries and Wages. These, so far as they go, are satisfactory results. It would be interesting to continue the comparison by bringing in the Scottish medical school hospitals; but the necessary figures are lacking.

Among the minor hospitals there are a few extraordinarily high costs shown, such as one small hospital (under 30 beds) with a weekly cost of £5 17s., which is explained by turning to Table 14, where it appears that of its 14 beds, the average occupied was 3 only; and another, of 6 beds, showing a weekly cost of £13 13s. 7d. with an average occupation of .9 only. Such figures suggest doubts whether, in these days of transport facilities, little hospitals so placed can ever justify their existence. One larger hospital shows an increase per week of 14s. 5d. to £5, though its average occupation of beds is shown in Table 10 as 80 per cent.—not a high figure, but not so low as to explain the £5.

As suggested a year ago, all hospitals were invited to send in, early this year, statements of the actual numbers, costs and sums recovered in respect of road-accident in-patients in 1934 and (if available) in 1932 and 1933 also. The number of returns received in response is disappointing and for the earlier years the question is dropped; but for 1934 the Central Bureau estimates that, in round numbers, 25,000 patients were treated, at a cost of £235,000, and the recoveries were £80,000 under the Road Traffic Acts and the Common Law, and £30,000 from patients or their friends. Of the total of £110,000, some two-thirds came in during the year of the accident. It may be remembered that for 1927, the recoveries were estimated at £26,000 out of a total cost of £230,000, the smallness of the total increase since that date being attributable to the lower present cost of maintenance per occupied bed. There is thus a substantial improvement in the amount received, though the wide differences in the proportions of cost recovered by individual hospitals suggest that their efforts in this direction are unequal, and that with closer attention there should be a considerable increase in the aggregate recovered, over and above that resulting from the fresh legislation of 1933. The comprehensive remedy for the still remaining loss to the hospitals, suggested in earlier reviews, viz. the extension of insurance to cover "pure accident" cases on Workmen's Compensation lines, has not yet found legislative sanction.

THE HOSPITAL YEAR.

The Voluntary System—The Need for a Policy.

At the annual conference of The British Hospitals Association in June 1934, a paper entitled "Co-operation Between the Voluntary and Municipal Hospital Services" was read by Sir George Newman, K.C.B., M.D., Chief Medical Officer of the Ministry of Health. In this paper Sir George Newman stated :

"Now speaking broadly, all these hospitals" (Voluntary and Municipal), "have to-day one common and identical purpose, viz., the relief of suffering, the conquest of disease, and the saving of life. . . . The differentiation is less definite than formerly, for Voluntary Hospitals are more and more engaged in municipal service, and municipal hospitals are adopting voluntary principles, and the problem before us is the development of a practical and unified system of co-operation between them. It is clear that this is the only sensible course to pursue. We cannot put back the clock of their history. . . . 'It is imperative,' said Mr. Neville Chamberlain, 'that Local Authorities should establish the most cordial relation with, and should make the fullest use of the accumulated skill and experience of the medical profession in regard to hospitals.' . . . It must be said, however, that in some areas there is, even yet, no real and effective consultation or co-operation between the Local Authorities and representative Committees of the Voluntary Hospitals and their medical and surgical staffs."

The statement is clear and precise; the authority beyond all question. There is here no death knell to the Voluntary System, but there is a distinct warning. "It is imperative," says Mr. Neville Chamberlain, "that cordial relations should be established"; "in some areas," says Sir George Newman, "there is even yet no real and effective consultation or co-operation." What is the report on the situation from the Voluntary Hospital side?

In this connection the following quotations from the Report on the Voluntary Hospitals of Liverpool are relevant. In discussing the approach of the Voluntary Hospitals to the Municipal Hospitals, the Report says :—

"It is easy to say that an approach should be made. Who is to make it? As soon as we try to answer this question we are brought face to face with another aspect of the same weakness to which we called attention in the preceding section: the 'political' weakness as we then called it, the 'diplomatic' weakness as we may now call it, of the voluntary system in Liverpool. It is without the means of taking common action.

"The Liverpool Voluntary Hospitals have similar traditions and similar problems. Their purpose is to render the same sort of service in the same sort of way. In recent years they have found themselves face to face with a competing system of hospitals designed to render much the same sort of service in rather a different sort of way. The new system may be in some respects a superior system; in other respects an inferior system. It may be attracting the clients of the older system, though we have shown reasons for doubting if that is a correct interpretation to put upon the facts. None of this is material to the question now at issue. The important fact is that the newer system exists, and that to assign to each system its proper territory, as well as to agree upon the limits of the territory that should rightly be common to both, is a problem in diplomacy of the utmost importance to Liverpool, its citizens, and its university. It is also a problem of much intricacy requiring expert handling. The municipality are both equipped to discuss it, and ready and anxious to begin discussions. They are sovereign within their own domain, and they have every desire themselves to approach the Voluntary Hospitals. They can confer upon their negotiators plenary powers, but they do not know with whom to negotiate. They cannot negotiate with twenty different sovereigns at once. Yet that is what they find on the voluntary side—some twenty different hospitals, with similar interests, but with no single body authorised to speak on behalf of them all, even on a question which is of vital interest to their own future. This is a serious issue. We are glad to think the Voluntary Hospitals are now awake to its importance."

"There has arisen alongside the voluntary system a parallel and separate system of hospitals under municipal management. The new system differs in some respects from the old; but the two systems have a large common territory and many common problems. There is at present no effective organisation on the voluntary side for discussing the relations between them."

Again in the "Hospitals Year Book" for the year 1932 it was observed that

"A State or a Public Authority can meet an organised body and agree upon certain broad principles to be modified locally within reasonable limits, but no State and no Public Authority working under the State can be expected, once having determined upon its own definite policy, to modify it in a thousand different ways to suit the views and wishes of each individual hospital. It is essential, therefore, that the Voluntary Hospitals should endeavour not only to think collectively but also to strengthen their machinery for expressing their considered views."

While there is indeed evidence of willingness on both sides to do what is in the best interests of the country as a whole, and while it is true that in certain towns and districts advances have been made and progress achieved, there is still a good deal of uncertainty and hesitation, due chiefly no doubt to the lack of any clearly defined policy on one side or the other. The Act of 1929 provided a link between individual Voluntary Hospitals or groups of hospitals and the Public Authorities and to this extent is valuable. What it did not and could not do was to bring into existence a body able to formulate a policy and to promote it on behalf of all the Voluntary Hospitals in the country. That is a task which the Voluntary Hospitals themselves might well undertake. At the forthcoming Conference of The British Hospitals Association, to be held at Leamington at the end of May and the beginning of June this year, a paper will be read by Lord Cozens-Hardy, in association with Dr. C. A. Wells, on "The Voluntary Hospital System and the need for a definite Policy." The opportunity is there.

The Voluntary Hospitals in the past have led a charmed life, but it would, in face of the changed circumstances of the times, be tempting providence to let this opportunity slip of consolidating their position as an integral part of the health service of the country.

The British Hospitals Association (Inc.).

No record of the Voluntary Hospital System would be complete without some reference to the activities of its representative Association.

Recent events have emphasised the importance of joint action and of joint consideration of problems that formerly might have been left with safety to each individual hospital for their solution. What degree of centralisation a system of Voluntary Hospitals can attain without losing more than it gains cannot be definitely laid down. This, however, is certain: it can without danger and with every possible gain to itself centralise and make common property of its experience. In this respect it can with advantage apply to its various administrative aspects, the lesson to be learnt from the practice of the profession that has succeeded in bringing to so high a pitch of excellence, the treatment it provides for the sick. There is no hospital staff that either quibbles or hesitates for a moment to make known as widely as possible discoveries or new methods of treatment that have been found efficacious. There is no reason why by following similar methods a voluntary system of hospitals should not reach a degree of administrative excellence equal to that attained medically and surgically. It is one of the objects of The British Hospitals Association to create machinery by which such a result may be made possible.

A further object of the Association is one which developments of recent years have to a certain extent forced upon the Voluntary Hospitals. Formerly, a Voluntary Hospital enjoyed a somewhat sheltered existence. It was the only occupant of the health field, at least so far as institutional treatment of the sick was concerned, and while it is quite possible that there was little or no advantage in the rather exaggerated individualistic attitude it adopted, there was at least no danger. To-day, things are different. Voluntary Hospitals are a part only of a great national effort, and as such it is no longer possible for them to play their part effectively, unless they make some joint effort to lay down fundamentals and to arrive at a measure of agreement with regard to such modifications of past practice as are necessary to enable them to meet the altered conditions of the present. In other words, it is necessary for them to formulate a policy.

The Association itself is organised regionally. Twenty-two regions cover England and Wales. Scotland forms a branch of its own. Several of the Irish Hospitals are members of the Association, although there is no Irish region. There are, as might naturally be expected, cordial relationships with Irish hospitals generally and the Central Bureau of Hospital Information both receives information and is only too ready to give it whenever asked. The Association now represents the majority of the beds in Voluntary Hospitals. It has added considerably to its membership during the past year. Each region is entitled to appoint representatives upon the Council of the Association in accordance with the number of Voluntary Hospital beds in its area. The Council meets four times a year. Owing to pressure of business it has been found necessary recently to appoint an executive body of fifteen members to meet monthly and to deal with matters of urgency and with matters referred to it by the Council itself. The Association enjoys the advantage of working in close co-operation with King Edward's Hospital Fund for London.

The Central Bureau of Hospital Information.

The Central Bureau of Hospital Information was formed in 1928 as a development of the work started in 1920 in the Hospitals and Medical Services Department of the Joint Council. The formation of the Bureau, however, with the co-operation of The British Hospitals Association and the Incorporated Association of Hospital Officers, set the activity upon a firm foundation and the Bureau carries out its work on the authority and with the full co-operation of the hospitals themselves. The work is constantly expanding and the number of letters of appreciation received show that the Bureau meets a definite need.

The aims of the Bureau may be summarised as follows :—

- (i) To act as a clearing house of information in order that the experience of all may be at the service of each.
- (ii) To undertake enquiries with the object of obtaining facts for those responsible for guiding hospital policy.
- (iii) To collect and summarise data concerning all matters of administrative interest to those engaged in hospital management.
- (iv) To establish a library where books, pamphlets and diagrams dealing with matters of hospital administration, construction and equipment may be consulted.
- (v) To publish annually a "Hospitals Year-Book" containing a Directory of hospitals in Great Britain together with a report giving particulars of work done, finances, etc.

In addition, the Bureau undertakes special enquiries at the request of individual hospitals. In this connection an extract from "Housing England" published by "Political and Economic Planning" in December, 1934, is interesting :—

" . . . At the moment the law of libel makes it dangerous to give information as to the value of proprietary and some non-proprietary materials. It is vital to the trade to know the results obtained from a particular material or fitting. The need is not fully met even by Building Research Station testing under more or less laboratory conditions. Such tests are comparatively rare and their cost precludes their regular adoption. It is, however, met by a scheme such as that devised by the Hospitals Information Bureau, and if this can be shown to be legally safe it would probably be a most important function of such a body. The sale of report sheets, if carried out by a live organisation, would produce a considerable income, and their cost of compilation is negligible.

"The hospitals' organisation was primarily set up with a view to co-ordinating the systems of accountancy employed by the various voluntary hospitals, and as a statistical survey authority. As a result of receiving enquiries as to the desirability of inaugurating alterations in hospital routine and organisation (e.g. the time of waking patients) a system of questionnaires was set up, and these have been extended to cover building materials. For example, a questionnaire in connection with rubber flooring was sent to a large number of hospital authorities. The replies were tabulated and published without the names of the hospitals concerned. They are sold to members of the organisation at a small sum—generally 2*d.* or 3*d.* to cover printing costs. The value of this to those interested in new building or re-equipment is incalculable, and the bureau is of general interest as being the first piece of research, solely from the consumer angle, known in the building industry. It would appear to be applicable to a great variety of products where the information required can be based on the lay observance of the behaviour of the material rather than on purely scientific enquiry. . . ."

It is one of the objects of the Central Bureau to help to bring users and producers into effective contact. It is not always easy for the user to make known the defects which he has, as a result of his experience, discovered in the product. His complaint or criticism may have to be communicated through several mouths, if made at all. On the other hand, the producer, if he gets in touch with the user, has difficulty in checking the importance of an individual suggestion or criticism. The Bureau, after obtaining the names of the users of any particular product (not always an easy thing to do) secures by means of a questionnaire comprehensive criticism based upon experience. The present method of producing an article more or less in the dark and of trusting to middlemen to market it, is in many respects wasteful. There is good authority for believing that accurate specification is probably the most important factor in production. Any machinery, therefore, which enables hospitals to give producers exact information must save the producer much labour and waste of time and enable him to produce at lower cost with advantage to himself and to the user. It is in this direction that a Bureau of Information can serve a useful purpose. Incidentally, hospital administrators, learning the advantage of the scheme, are undoubtedly becoming better observers, so that greater reliance can be placed upon their criticisms of any particular article.

There is a further function which the Bureau can perform. To meet a want a producer introduces a new article or an article of a new design. His present method is to supply it to his agents and leave it to the agents to persuade hospitals to purchase. It may easily happen that a new article is being tried by 50 or 100 hospitals and eventually discarded as unsuited for its purpose. Much money would be saved were the new article to be tried out at, say, half-a-dozen hospitals and the results communicated to the producer. There is much to be said in favour of an experimental hospital where new things could be tried out and reports issued. For this purpose it is not necessary to build a new hospital. An existing hospital could be selected and subsidised for the purpose.

Payment of Visiting Medical Staffs.

The subject of the payment of hospital staffs still remains unsettled. In spite of the fact that hospitals as a whole wished (and many may still wish) to leave the decision to the judgment of each individual institution concerned, yet each institution as the matter arises is only too anxious to ascertain what is done elsewhere. The Linlithgow Report which advised, among other things, the setting up of a body to consider problems arising from this departure from tradition on their merits, received short shrift. The Linlithgow Report was based primarily upon money received from Contributory Schemes. Now the subject has been raised in another and more acute form through the advent of the Municipal Hospitals. The number of hospitals in which payment in some form or other is made to the Honorary Staffs grows yearly. It is evident that the Voluntary System is here confronted with something that can no longer be left to chance and to individual decision.

Nursing in Small Hospitals.

Various efforts have been made to arrive at agreement regarding the real functions of a cottage hospital and its place in a general health service, without much success. Factors not altogether connected with matters of health too often influence points of importance such as the choice of the hospital site, or the size and the character of the accommodation to be provided. Nor is the staff appropriate to the cottage hospital always easy to determine. In not a few the number of doctors exceeds the number of beds for patients and practical difficulties of administration not always easy to overcome are thereby raised.

One of the main difficulties, however, is connected with the nursing staff. Owing to the lack of material for teaching purposes, the cottage hospitals are not able to prepare candidates for the State Examinations and the time spent in them does not always count towards qualification. This, of course, somewhat limits the choice. Recognition as a training school is therefore the ambition of the smaller hospitals that are of the 50-60 bed type. Consequently, in considering expansion, it is possible that a desire for recognition influences the estimate of the number of beds required, rather than the actual needs of the locality. The principle of affiliation with the larger hospitals has been advised, but has not been adopted on any large scale. Various suggestions have been made for meeting the difficulty. Any attempt, however, to solve it as an isolated fact will lead nowhere. It is one of the many problems now confronting the Voluntary hospitals that can only be successfully dealt with if treated as part of the system as a whole.

Out-patient Departments.

In December 1931 a Committee of King Edward's Hospital Fund for London was set up to enquire into out-patient methods at London Voluntary Hospitals as affecting suitability of patients and time of waiting. This Committee reported in December 1932. Inter alia the Committee recommended that the time-saving methods of procedure already adopted or suggested by various hospitals, should be studied by hospitals with a view to action where appropriate, including improvements at separate stages, such as registration, examination and treatment, dispensary, interviews with almoners or inquiry officers, and sifting: and improvements in general procedure such as additional sessions for special classes of patients or different times of arrival for different classes, or for such patients or groups of patients as can be given appointments.

They also recommended that the King's Fund should consider to what extent it could help to carry out these recommendations by making more details available or by other relevant methods. In order to carry out this last recommendation, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales appointed a Committee, to be called the Out-patient Arrangements Committee. This Committee has issued a preliminary report for consideration by hospitals (February 1935), Time-saving Methods at Hospital Out-patient Dispensaries, which has been circulated to hospitals for observations and suggestions. By the courtesy of the King's Fund copies of this memorandum have been made available for the Provincial Voluntary Hospitals and there have been many expressions of appreciation regarding the useful character of the information contained. In addition the Out-patient Arrangements Committee have published memoranda on Standard Forms for Doctors' Letters and Hospital Replies; Hospital Out-patient Time-Tables; and District Nurses and their work in Relief of Hospital Out-patient Departments.

Provident Schemes.

During the year 1934 the British Medical Association set up a Committee which contained representatives of Voluntary Hospitals and leading Contributory Schemes, to consider the development of Provident Associations for institutional medical treatment. This Committee prepared notes, together with a draft memorandum and articles of a Provident Association for the guidance of those proposing to establish such Schemes. A précis of these will be found on page 294.

Memorandum No. 4 published by the Central Bureau of Hospital Information also contains the essential details of some of the existing Schemes of this character.

While there is no suggestion that all Schemes should conform to one pattern, it cannot but be useful to those proposing to establish a Scheme to have information of this kind before them as a basis upon which to work.

Group Purchase, Standardisation and Simplification.

It is probable that the advocates of the advantages of joint purchase have allowed enthusiasm to outrun discretion and have attempted to give too universal an application to their case. One instance of success with a few carefully selected and largely used articles of standard size and shape would be much more likely to make converts of those who, possibly rightly, regard paper schemes with suspicion. So too with the kindred subjects of standardisation and simplification. The following examples taken from reports of recent Committees leave no room for doubt or argument:—

Extract from the Report of the Committee on Hospital Equipment, Public Health Congress, 1934.

"In the year 1930-31 the total annual maintenance expenditure of the Council's Hospitals was £4,040,768; in approximately 34 per cent. of this expenditure lower prices were obtained for supplies as the result of central purchasing and in 28 per cent. as a result of standardisation."

Extract from the Report of the Committee on the Standardisation and Simplification of the Requirements of Local Authorities, Ministry of Health, 1934.

"A. (County Council.)

Number of stock articles carried as office requisites reduced from 298 to 216. By purchase in bulk a saving of £500 made in one year on office requisites alone.

Types of envelopes reduced from 23 to 11.

A saving of more than £8,000 effected in one year in the cost of supply of provisions, drugs and clothing to institutions.

B. (County Borough.)

Envelopes: by standardising and purchasing in bulk, a saving of 42.5 per cent. was effected. (Another County Borough estimated a saving of £2,000 a year by standardising its stationery.)

THE HOSPITAL YEAR

C. (County Borough.)

22 kinds of disinfectants have been reduced to 11.

32 kinds and sizes of towels have been reduced to 12.

37 kinds and classes of cloth have been reduced to 10.

D. (A Railway Company.)

24 kinds of sweeping brushes reduced to 4.

75 types of drawing paper reduced to 25.

130 classes of paints reduced to 55.

E. (An American State.)

75 kinds of soap and cleaning materials reduced to 10, and a saving of 31 per cent. effected. (Another State reduced 32 kinds of soap to 5.)

F. (An American City.)

40 different brands of lubricating oils used for the municipal transport were reduced to 5.

In passing we may remark that 66 varieties of paving brick in regular use in the United States of America have, under the auspices of the Federal Department of Commerce, been brought down to four styles and sizes, and that with the support of the American Hospital Association a standard hospital bed has been produced where before there were several hundred varieties; we understand that these standards have received a wide measure of acceptance."

Too often in discussions regarding simplification and standardisation alarm is expressed that a check will be placed upon that freedom to experiment that is so important to progress, and examples are taken of things upon which it would be most difficult to obtain any measure of general agreement. There are, however, numerous articles of the type given in the lists quoted that could be dealt with to great advantage and still leave ample scope for doctor and matron and lay administrator to satisfy all reasonable desire for self-expression. There are probably more difficulties ahead of group purchase than of simplification, but even here if common sense be exercised in selection, there is something to be done. It is impossible to disregard the instances of success provided by several Public Authorities. The Voluntary Hospitals will have an opportunity of considering whether they too cannot to some extent modify their present methods. At the Annual Conference of The British Hospitals

Association at Leamington a session is to be devoted to a paper and a discussion on this subject.

Planning.

The subject of hospital planning is receiving very considerable attention at the present time. The effect of sound planning and the choice of building materials upon running costs is not always fully appreciated, and the long view is not always taken in considering capital expenditure. In the past much has been taken for granted, and plans and tenders have not always been subjected to real and effective criticism, the reason being that neither architects nor Committees of Management have been in possession of anything of the nature of standards for purposes of comparison. There is reason to believe that committees of enquiry which are now sitting will alter this state of affairs much to the advantage of both architects and Committees of Management. Committees of Management will know that for a certain function or for a certain volume of work a certain space is necessary and any great divergence from the normal will become apparent at once. Space will in consequence be either reduced or increased, in the one case to the benefit of the Committee's purse, and in the other to the benefit of the function to be performed. Lines of travel and the relative advantages of vertical and horizontal planning are being carefully studied and their effect taken out of the realm of guess-work. This will not in any way trammel the architect or the Committee of Management, but it will ensure that variations oscillate between reasonable limits.

Legacy Duty.

On the death of a person there are levied (a) estate duty and (b) legacy duty. The estate duty is a levy on the total net value of the testator's estate, and is payable at a graduated rate according to the size of the estate, and it makes no difference in the rate whether the estate goes to the deceased's family or to "strangers in blood." Legacy duty is a supplemental duty levied on the benefits received by beneficiaries under the Will, whether they be legatees of a fixed sum or of a share in the residue. This duty is graduated according to the degree of relationship to the beneficiary and not according to the amount of the legacy. The immediate family of a deceased generally escapes with a duty of 1 per cent., brothers and sisters pay 5 per cent. and "strangers in blood" (which includes all corporations and charities) pay 10 per cent.

The Voluntary Hospitals Committee, in its final report, 1921, recommended that testatory gifts to hospitals should be exempted from the 10 per cent. legacy duty.

"We understand," says the report, "that such an exemption is allowed in the United States and is believed to have a marked effect in encouraging bequests to hospitals. There appears to be no good reason why the State should intercept at the source one-tenth of all sums bequeathed for the benefit of the sick, and we recommend that these gifts be freed from the duty."

This recommendation applies to legacy and succession duty, but not to estate duty.

In June 1923 an influential deputation representing Members of Parliament, King Edward's Hospital Fund for London and The British Hospitals Association waited upon the Financial Secretary to the Treasury to support the proposal that legacies to hospitals should be exempted from legacy and succession duty.

This deputation pointed out that there was general agreement with the recommendation of the Voluntary Hospitals Committee that the Voluntary Hospital System ought to be maintained; that the Report of the Committee contained a complete scheme for the re-establishment of Voluntary Hospital finance; that the scheme ought to be treated as a whole, and that the proposal that legacies to hospitals should be exempted from legacy duty was an integral part of it.

The deputation urged that a direct annual Government grant would discourage voluntary gifts and depress the Voluntary System, but that the proposed form of indirect assistance whereby the Government would refrain from intercepting a percentage of testamentary gifts would encourage it. The loss to the Treasury would thus be a good investment, for if the Voluntary System failed, the hospitals would have to be maintained out of public funds.

With reference to the argument that other charities would claim the same concession, the deputation maintained that hospitals were unique and that the country could not be carried on without them. Besides healing the sick, they trained doctors and nurses, including those required for Government work. The Government was, therefore, already in their debt. If they did not exist, the Government would have to provide them. The Government had already recognised their exceptional position by the appointment of the Voluntary Hospitals Commission, and by the emergency Government grant of £500,000 in 1921. The same claim had not been made and could not be made on behalf of other charities.

The application was unsuccessful and there the matter has remained since June 1923, although it has been from time to time brought to the notice of the Council of The British Hospitals Association by individual hospitals. The Council have always been in agreement as to the justice of the claim, but have postponed pressing it to a more favourable opportunity. In view of the improvement in the state of the finances of the country generally it is hoped that the Chancellor of the Exchequer may now be induced to look upon an application with more favourable eyes.

Milk Control.

Representatives of the Voluntary Hospitals have waited upon the Milk Marketing Board three times in the hope of being able to obtain some concession in the matter of the prices which they pay for milk. They have unfortunately been unsuccessful. The hospitals base their claim for relief upon the following facts :

Cost of milk for the year ended
September 1933*	£279,000
Cost of milk for the year ended
September 1934 †	£322,000

or an increase of approximately 15 per cent.

Control during the first year, therefore, was tantamount to the imposing of a tax of approximately 15 per cent. on one of the most essential foods in a hospital.

The average price per gallon for the two periods was 1s. 2d. and 1s. 4d. respectively. But for the fact that contracts for milk entered into in the year 1933 prior to the introduction of milk control were allowed to continue until their termination, the total cost of milk to hospitals during 1934 would have been higher.

The average increase of 15 per cent. in the price of milk for the hospitals as a body in England and Wales does not reveal the whole situation. Where hospitals were buying on favourable terms, increases in a number of cases have been as much as 33 per cent. In one instance the increase was actually 63 per cent.

* Immediately before milk became controlled.

† The first year of control.

An increase in the cost of milk cannot be passed on to the public, and must be faced by the hospital itself. Hospitals can only meet it by

- (i) curtailing work that they would otherwise be able to do for the sick poor;
- (ii) limiting their consumption of milk, or substituting an inferior grade for a superior grade.

The hospitals are naturally most reluctant to adopt either course.

The hospitals could make excellent use of much larger quantities of milk than they have done in the past, but buying milk as they do in large quantities, it is a serious item in the hospital budget and the price is a definite factor.

Owing to the nature of their work hospitals should be the first to receive preferential treatment. The regulations of the Milk Marketing Board allow the sale of milk used for various manufactures at between 4*d.* and 9*d.* per gallon. It is submitted that hospitals should be treated upon at least equal terms.

There is ample precedent for the preferential treatment of Voluntary Hospitals by the State and the Public Authorities. The State has granted power under the Public Health Act of 1925 to the Public Authorities to make grants to Voluntary Hospitals and under the Local Government Act of 1929 has extended this power. The State allows a rebate on the tax on methylated and rectified spirits used for hospital purposes. Many Municipalities recognise the value of the work which Voluntary Hospitals do and assess them for rating purposes on preferential terms.

Under the milk publicity scheme all school children are entitled to a daily supply of milk at a reduced price. Almost all Voluntary Hospitals have children in their wards and under the present circumstances they are not able to benefit under the publicity scheme. Should not the sick child enjoy the same privilege as the healthy?

Voluntary Hospitals are hard hit by the scheme for the following additional reason. They are able to obtain many commodities from suppliers on special terms simply because they are hospitals, i.e., the supplier is willing to make what amounts to a donation to the hospital. He is often regarded by the hospital as a friend and this spirit usually influences negotiations. Concessions worth many thousands of pounds to the hospitals are thus made by various sections of the community who prefer to do their part towards the support of the hospitals in this way, rather than by a cash donation. But the effect of the regulations of the Milk Marketing Board is to make it impossible for the suppliers of milk to continue to play their part in this way. There is evidence that many are genuinely sorry that owing to the regulations they cannot now do so. The supplier of milk has, in fact, been placed by the scheme in a position vis-à-vis the hospitals, which does not apply to other sections of the community. The hospitals feel that this is unfortunate and that no public advantage can be gained thereby. Moreover, a limit to the donation that a supplier may give is imposed by the regulations and is enforced by liability to prosecution.

Sweepstakes.

There is little doubt that hospitals were wise in their decision to have nothing to do with sweepstakes or lotteries in general. Already there is evidence of the drying up of support from voluntary sources in Ireland. In a report issued by the Hospital Commission in the Irish Free State, with regard to the financial position of hospitals participating in the funds derived from sweepstakes, dated May 1934, attention is called to the increases in the numbers of free patients treated in 1933, as compared with 1929, which ranged from 10 to 50 per cent. The report states:

"Many hospitals have complained of the increasing difficulty of receiving payment from patients in a position to pay, the opinion among the general public being that the Sweepstake Fund has now reached a figure whereby all may be treated free."

The report further states that:

"Coincident with the increase in the numbers of free patients treated and contributing perhaps to an even greater degree to the swelling of the working deficits, is the decrease in subscriptions since the advent of the Sweepstakes. Taking a representative group of seven hospitals, it is found that subscriptions have decreased from £14,268 in 1929 to £4,766 in 1933, a decrease of 67 per cent. Whilst this enormous drop in the amount of subscriptions in four years may be in part due to the general depression, by far the greater portion must be attributed to the aforementioned idea which exists in the minds of the public, that the hospitals were never so well off as to-day, and that the funds available for their upkeep are limitless."

There is, however, another side to this question. The Betting and Lotteries Act of 1934 made certain projects for raffling prizes at fêtes and carnivals legal. Unfortunately, in spite of all the representations that hospitals could make, conditions were attached which rendered this concession of little value. There would seem to be ample justification for an amendment to the Betting and Lotteries Act which would enable Hospitals to continue to enjoy the fruits of projects that experience has shown to have no harmful effects and that have provided considerable sums of money devoted to entirely worthy objects.

Assessment.

The problem of the assessment of hospitals remains still unsolved. Some time ago The British Hospitals Association came to the conclusion that it was wiser to leave negotiations entirely to the individual hospital and the assessing authority concerned. An individual hospital, however, when confronted with the problem of its assessment, and desirous of strengthening its arguments, almost invariably seeks for information regarding that which is being done elsewhere. It would not therefore appear that the policy of isolated action is altogether a solution of the difficulty.

The recommendations of the Central Valuation Committee, viz. :

In considering a basis, Rating and Assessment Authorities should be reminded that the practical question which they are called upon to determine is—what would be a reasonable annual rent, if the particular property under consideration were in the market to let for the purposes for which it is at present being used. In arriving at an estimate of such rent, regard should be had to the following, among other considerations :—

That it has, in the past, been the established practice of Rating and Assessment Authorities, in assessing such properties, to take into account the fact that the present occupiers can be regarded as possible tenants only so long as they are able to rely upon voluntary contributions from the general public to enable them to continue the occupation and use of such properties for hospital purposes ; can only mean that hospitals should be assessed upon a purely nominal basis.

Re-assessments are taking place at the moment. While there are difficulties in the case of certain hospitals there can be little doubt that re-assessment on the basis of the recommendations of the Central Valuation Committee would prove a very considerable relief to the great majority.

General.

Ambulances.

The part which transport plays in a modern health service is not always fully realised. The Home Ambulance Service of the Joint Council of the Order of St. John & the British Red Cross Society controls 342 ambulance stations in various parts of the country and during the year 1934 conveyed 131,208 patients. Many hospitals possess their own ambulances in addition. This fact has an important bearing on any hospital scheme for an area and should be taken into consideration before coming to any decision regarding the number or the position of institutions devoted to the treatment of the sick.

International Hospital Association.

The International Hospital Association, which is this year holding its fourth biennial congress in Rome, has undertaken and accomplished much useful work. Its quarterly publication, "Nosokomeion," is of outstanding merit and is greatly appreciated by many who are engaged in hospital administration.

The constitution of the Association is now under revision. It is greatly to be hoped that such reforms as may be found necessary will enable it to secure the support it requires for its work.

New Buildings.

Attention is drawn to pages 1-7, where a list of new buildings or extensions completed by the Voluntary Hospitals during the year 1933 is given. It covers over 150 different schemes, some of them of a very composite character. In seven an expenditure of nearly £750,000 is involved. The list would be a sufficiently striking one if it were at all exceptional, but it is typical, and each year produces a similar list.

The Year-Book Directory.

Each year the Editorial Committee have increased the scope of the directory portion of the Year-Book and have endeavoured by means of key letters to keep it within reasonable bounds. This year a directory of Municipal and Public Assistance Hospitals and Maternity Hospitals and Homes, as well as a list of Societies and Charitable Institutions, etc., which are in any way linked with hospitals and health services generally, have been added.

Requests to include a list of Convalescent Homes partly as a useful guide to those engaged in hospital work and also because of the desirability of forming some opinion regarding the convalescent accommodation available in the country, have also been received. There are, however, great difficulties in such a compilation. So far it has not been found possible to extend beyond those Convalescent Homes which are directly under the control of Voluntary Hospitals.

Records.

It is not at all easy to compile hospital records, whether of work done or of staff engaged in doing it. Much of the difficulty arises out of differences in nomenclature and differences in allocation of duties.

In these complicated days of action and reaction the absence of essential and relevant data makes the solution of many social problems almost a nightmare. While no system of records can possibly provide data to meet every case, much time and labour would be saved by the adoption of a reasonable measure of uniformity regarding basic facts and figures. Many special problems require facts and figures to be specially taken out. This cannot be helped. There is, however, no reason why even this work should be rendered more difficult by the absence of reasonable uniformity. There have been not a few instances lately where important enquiries have been hampered by the absence of data, and conclusions rendered less convincing, by reason of the fact that they rested upon estimations and approximations. Already something has been done to produce uniformity in the matter of accounts with good results. It is suggested that the statistics concerning work, staffs, etc., given in the Year-Book might with advantage be adopted as a basis by all hospitals, and the particulars published in their yearly Reports. This would save much correspondence and generally reduce the size of the troublesome questionnaire.

MILK SUPPLIES TO HOSPITALS.

THE first year of Milk Control ends on the 30th September, 1934. The Milk Marketing Board has fixed wholesale and retail prices for the 12 months ending 30th September, 1935. The retail prices are numerous and vary with the population of the area; the wholesale prices are the same for all regions, and are as follows :—

	Per		Per		Per		Per
1934	Gall.	1935	Gall.	1935	Gall.	1935	Gall.
October ...	1/4	January ...	1/5	April ...	1/4	July ...	1/1
November ...	1/4	February ...	1/5	May ...	1/0 $\frac{1}{8}$	August ...	1/1
December ...	1/5	March ...	1/4	June ...	1/-	September ...	1/4

New forms of contract have also been introduced.

The following statement compares the conditions governing the supply of milk to hospitals during the year ended 30th September, 1934, with those which will be in force during the twelve months ending 30th September, 1935.

CONDITIONS UP TO 30th SEPTEMBER,	NEW CONDITIONS AS FROM 1st OCTOBER,
1934.	1934.

I. Supplies from Producers.

A special form SWC/33/3 was issued for contracts between producers and hospitals, etc. This form provided for hospitals to receive their supplies from producers at wholesale rates, plus an unstated amount in respect of a premium for special services, e.g., supply of a fixed quantity, bottling, pasteurisation, etc. Although the form provided for the addition of this premium, the vendor had the power to sell to hospitals at the wholesale prices without any such addition if he wished to do so. In practice, some hospitals were able to obtain their supplies at the wholesale rate without the addition of any premium.

A new form of contract, LAC/35/4, intended for the use of Local Authorities and Voluntary Hospitals, provides for the purchase of milk direct from producers, as before, but stipulates that a premium shall be payable in all cases, except where the purchaser agrees to buy the whole of the milk produced by a stated number of cows.

Where the contract is for a fixed quantity daily during the whole of the period covered by the contract and the producer is allowed a variation of ten per cent. above or below the stated amount, a premium (a) of $\frac{1}{2}d.$ per gallon will be payable. Where a lower limit than ten per cent. variation is agreed upon, an increased premium will be payable.

Where the contract is for such a quantity as may be agreed upon daily, the contract stipulates that a premium (b) of not less than $1\frac{1}{2}d.$ per gallon above the wholesale rates must be paid.

The contract also provides for the addition of a premium (c) in respect of "Special services," e.g., pasteurisation, bottling, etc. The amount of this premium, if any, will be a matter of negotiation between the producer and purchaser. The special form of contract, LAC/35/4 has been introduced so that Public Authorities and Voluntary Hospitals may be in a more favourable position than other large purchasers of milk, whose activities are carried on for profit. In practice, the majority of hospitals which require varying quantities daily, should now be in a position to negotiate contracts upon the basis of the regional wholesale price, plus $1\frac{1}{2}d.$ premium. The forms of contract will be provided by the producer.

*MILK SUPPLIES TO HOSPITALS.CONDITIONS UP TO 30th SEPTEMBER, 1934.*NEW CONDITIONS AS FROM 1st OCTOBER, 1934.*II. Supplies from Wholesalers.

Contracts entered into with wholesalers need not be registered with the Milk Marketing Board and were not subject to any regulations of the Board, except with regard to the minimum price at which milk might be sold.

No change, except with regard to the minimum price, viz., where the daily delivery does not exceed 500 gallons, the price may not be below the regional wholesale price, plus 1½*d.* premium.

III. Supplies from Retailers who are not also Producers.

The Milk Marketing Board, soon after the scheme was introduced, issued a statement that there was no objection to a retailer selling milk to hospitals or kindred institutions at a price lower than the prevailing retail price, the only limitation being that the price should not be below the regional wholesale price.

Under the new regulations of the Milk Marketing Board, retailers will be permitted to sell to hospitals and kindred institutions at any price between the local retail price and the regional wholesale price, plus 1½*d.* premium.

IV. Supplies from Retailers who are also Producers.

As a producer, the supplier might sell under the terms given for producers, or at any price between the local retail price and the regional wholesale price. The statement issued by the Milk Marketing Board, given in memorandum No. 69, made it clear that if a retailer were prepared to sell as low as the wholesale price, there was no objection to his doing so.

As a producer, the supplier may sell under the conditions given in No. 1 above, or as a retailer under retail or semi-retail terms. The semi-retail terms are: On a sale to one buyer and delivered at one place within 12 consecutive hours, the price charged may be less than the retail price by:—

- (a) 4*d.* per gallon if the quantity sold exceeds one gallon but does not exceed four gallons.
- (b) 6*d.* per gallon if the quantity sold exceeds four gallons but does not exceed ten gallons.

Figures just received from a Provincial hospital containing 370 beds, which did not come under the control of the Milk Marketing Board's scheme until April, 1934, show that for the months of April to September, 1934, inclusive, 17,585 gallons of milk were purchased at a cost of £954. Assuming the same quantity to have been consumed in the same months of 1933, the cost at the price then paid would have been £586.

These figures represent an increased expenditure on milk of £368 for the six months, or the equivalent of £2 per hospital bed (available) per annum. It must not be assumed that this rate of increase is universal. The actual figures can only be ascertained after the answers to a general questionnaire have been received and summarised.

NOTES

All the Homes have been built within the last 14 years except the first which was built in 1907. Half provide accommodation for 100 or more occupants and half for less than 100.

None of the bedrooms is less than 100 sq. ft. in area and 5 of them are 120 sq. ft. or more.

If rooms on the ground floor are eliminated the usual height of bedrooms is from 9 ft. to 9 ft. 6 in. Three are below that figure. The width of the corridors varies from 4 ft. 6 in. to 7 ft., but 5 ft. to 5 ft. 6 in. is the commonest width.

CODE CALLS FOR MEMBERS OF STAFF.

Hpl.	No. of beds.	Summary of reports from Hospital Administrators.
A	470	We have recently installed a new automatic telephone system and staff locaters. The latter have only been in use for a few days, therefore it is too early yet to pronounce a verdict although it rather looks as if they are going to be of great advantage. A dial is fixed in the telephone room and a pointer is directed to the name of the officer required. This connects a switch which automatically lights in every position where the locater is placed. The locater itself is about 14" × 3" and the glass is half circle. At the moment we are only working on 10 officers, but by using a flicker system we are told we can find 32 different persons. The system was installed by Messrs. Gent and Co., Ltd., Faraday Works, Leicester. The cost is expected to be in the region of £500. This is, of course, controlled by the number of locater positions, we having 55.
B	330	The system here was put in some three or four years ago by the Relay Automatic Telephone Co. (since taken over by Siemens). I am writing to mention the advantage of light signals over sound signals in parts of the hospital where sound signals are so distracting to the patients. Our original apparatus was for sound calls only, but by some ingenious electrical arrangement we have been able to substitute in the wards light signals which give out the same code, so that a Resident Medical Officer's code call is sent out by sound in his own quarters, and in the laboratories, dining rooms, etc., and by light signals in the wards.
C	120	We have recently installed a most successful code caller here, not only for the Resident Medical Officers, but other members of the staff. The firm who supplied the system is Messrs. Siemens, Ltd., Relay Section, 38 Upper Thames Street, London, E.C. 4. The following instructions were issued to all concerned :— Staff Caller System. Should you be unable to obtain an answer on the internal telephone for the following members of the staff :— <table><tr><td>Secretary</td><td>House Surgeon 2</td><td>At Night Only</td></tr><tr><td>Matron</td><td>Assistant Matron</td><td>Night Sister</td></tr><tr><td>House Surgeon 1</td><td>Porter</td><td></td></tr></table> please dial 12 (the General Office) and ask for the staff caller to be switched on. The following signals will be made :— <table><tr><td>Secretary</td><td>...</td><td>...</td><td>Green and yellow lights.</td></tr><tr><td>Matron</td><td>...</td><td>...</td><td>Single red light.</td></tr><tr><td>House Surgeon 1</td><td>...</td><td>...</td><td>Single yellow light.</td></tr><tr><td>"</td><td>"</td><td>2</td><td>...</td><td>Single green light.</td></tr><tr><td>Assistant Matron</td><td>...</td><td>...</td><td>Red and green lights.</td></tr><tr><td>Porter</td><td>...</td><td>...</td><td>...</td><td>Red and yellow lights.</td></tr></table> At night only. <table><tr><td>Night Sister</td><td>...</td><td>...</td><td>Single red light.</td></tr></table> and a buzzer will sound two short, pause, three short. If you know that the member of the staff called is in your ward or department, please dial 12 (the General Office), ask who is wanting the person called (this enables caller to be cleared) and then inform the person called who requires them. Strict Attention to the Buzzer is necessary to enable the staff caller to work smoothly.	Secretary	House Surgeon 2	At Night Only	Matron	Assistant Matron	Night Sister	House Surgeon 1	Porter		Secretary	Green and yellow lights. D		The staff signalling system was made by Messrs. Gent & Co., Ltd., of Leicester. The system works on an electricity supply of 230 volts, and comprises 38 units of 3 different coloured lamps each, together with a flicker arrangement, all of which is controlled by a transmitter located in the telephone room in the administration block of the hospital. By the use of these 3 lamps and the flicker arrangement, 14 separate codes can be used. This installation has now been in use for a period of about six months, and has so far given every satisfaction for the calling of Resident Medical Officers and other senior members of the staff. The cost of the installation was £290 7s. 6d.
E	480	We have given a good deal of attention to this matter here and finally decided upon light signals. It is possible by the use of four coloured lights and a flicker to get thirty variations. The necessary switch and flicker apparatus is installed in the telephone switch room and was supplied by Gents of Leicester. The wiring, tubing and fitting of the light holders was carried out by our own engineering staff. We have a bracket containing four lights in every ward, in the casualty and out-patient departments and all other important parts of the hospital, including, of course, the Residents' quarters. Two years' experience shows this system works very well, and it is, of course, quiet, and in practice I find that lights receive quicker attention than gongs.
F	150	There is a dial in each department of the hospital, and the central switch-board is in the main hall. Surgeons are allocated to a number, and when these people are wanted, the hall porter is informed and he dials them. A buzzer draws the attention of the people in the department to the dial, and the person wanted goes to the nearest internal telephone and dials the hall porter who tells him where he is wanted. Generally the system works very well, but the chief drawback is that the further away from the main switch board the department is, the more current is required for the buzzer, and consequently in order that the distant buzzers may be heard those nearer the switch-board are very loud, and this causes considerable annoyance.

ASPECT OF WARDS FOR MEDICAL TREATMENT OF TUBERCULOSIS

In order to answer a correspondent who asked :—

1. Does the modern medical treatment of tuberculosis require that all wards should face due S.E. to S.?
2. Would it be detrimental to the patients if placed in some wards of a hospital block which do not enjoy the aspects mentioned?

the two questions were submitted to 15 Medical Superintendents. The replies are summarised as follows :—

San.	Answer to Question 1.	Answer to Question 2.
1	My opinion, for what it is worth, but based on many years' practical work in tuberculosis, is that the main factor in the treatment of the disease is rest—whether general bed-rest or local rest by artificial pneumothorax or plaster or appliances. So long as there is moving air and adequate ventilation with protection from cold winds and rain there is no reason at all why all wards should face due S.E. to S.	In my view it does not matter in the least degree which way the wards face, so long as the conditions mentioned in the last sentence of the answer to Question 1 are maintained. The answer to Question 2 is therefore No, in my opinion.
2	We generally feel here that a S.E. to S. aspect is the best.	We do not find that patients suffer if the aspect is west or east.
3	In the butterfly type of tuberculosis pavilion, one wing will face south by east and the other south by west. When open-air treatment, by means of balconies, is aimed at, in my opinion, this butterfly type facing south is best. For an ordinary pavilion ward unit, the north and south orientation is probably advisable so that the ward may receive sunlight in the morning from the east and in the afternoon from the west, with probably balcony or south room at the southern extremity.	The answer to Question 1 really covers this question. I do not think one could say that the treatment of patients in a hospital block which does not face south would be detrimental to them, but rather that they are not getting all the advantages which we believe may be obtained by tuberculous patients from the sun. These advantages may be direct or psychological, but in any case they are important for the patient.
4	A southern aspect is usually sought, but at this sanatorium I have several wards whose chief aspect is due west and east. I think the orientation of a ward depends to some extent upon its immediate surroundings, and in my opinion, if the fact of running a ward to face south meant sacrificing a better aspect and other advantages, I should turn the ward round.	The answer is in the negative.
5	In my opinion all wards in sanatoria dealing with pulmonary tuberculosis should face S.E. or S. On the other hand, sunlight is apt to be somewhat dangerous to patients unless they are graded very carefully. I think that it is essential for cases in sanatoria dealing with surgical tuberculosis, as sunlight plays such an important part in their treatment.	With regard to bed cases, I do not think it would be detrimental if placed in a ward of a hospital block not facing S.E. or S.
6	Yes, in a sanatorium .	No, ordinary hospital aspects are all that is necessary during the hospital phase of treatment.
7	Advantageous if possible, but not absolutely imperative.	Not appreciably, the general treatment being the factor determining rate of progress towards improvement.
8	Modern medical treatment of tuberculosis does not require that all wards should face due S.E. to S. It is desirable in order that maximum sun should be obtained and also in order to give the maximum shelter from the northerly and easterly winds, but it is possible that in some localities the sun would be too excessive, and in that case, wards away from the sun would be desirable.	It would not be detrimental to the patients to be placed in wards that do not enjoy the south aspect, particularly in the summer. The ideal arrangement would be, of course, to use wards facing south in the winter and the other direction in the summer. It should always be borne in mind that too much sunlight might not be particularly beneficial to all cases of tuberculosis, particularly pulmonary.

ASPECT OF WARDS FOR MEDICAL TREATMENT OF TUBERCULOSIS.

San.	Answer to Question 1.	Answer to Question 2.
9	I consider that all wards in a modern tuberculosis hospital should face either S.E., S., or S.W., in that order of preference. Whilst I was at — hospital, I did certain investigations into the ultra-violet content of the sun's rays in the three wards there which looked in slightly different directions, and I found that the ward which faced S.E. gave the highest ultra-violet exposure over a number of years. The test was done with the acetone methylene blue quartz apparatus.	I certainly think that tuberculous patients—and indeed any other patients—put aside in a ward which does not look in either of the above-mentioned directions would fail to derive full biological benefits through lack of exposure, not only to the sun's rays but to aerotherapy. The great benefit of being able to expose patients is not only the sun's rays but the stimulating effects derived from air motion. If the wards face N.E., N. or N.W. the cold air playing upon the patients' bodies makes it extremely uncomfortable, and there is a complete absence over many months of the year of the heating effect of the sun's rays. In addition there is the mental aspect to be considered, particularly with tuberculous patients if the aspect is dull and dreary. I therefore am strongly of the opinion that hospital architects should, without exception, construct wards on that scheme. It must be clearly understood that although direct application with exposure of the patients' bodies to the sun's rays and atmosphere is not reckoned to be particularly good with pulmonary cases, nevertheless the pushing out of these cases on to verandahs even with the patients' bodies covered by bedclothes, gives very beneficial results. With surgical tuberculosis, on the other hand, patients derive much benefit from complete exposure under direct application of sun and air to their bodies. The stimulating effect increases the metabolism enormously.
10	It is desirable that the modern sanatorium block should face south to south-east. In this type of block, however, we think it is essential that there should be a glass verandah roof.	With the hospital type of case it is not essential to have the ward facing south. With the axis of the wards running north to south there is a maximum amount of light to the ward, but not sunlight. This is not detrimental to the advanced case of pulmonary tuberculosis.
11	It is, I think, essential that all "bed" patients should be in wards facing S.E. to S. In building modern sanatoria, however, it is customary to provide for all types of pulmonary tuberculosis, so that in all probability in any institution a considerable number of the patients would be ambulant. For these I do not think that the south aspect is so essential. A due north aspect is not desirable, but often it is possible to arrange for wards to have windows with two aspects.
12	No. Aspect matters little for ambulant cases.	Yes. The chronic patient needs a good aspect, the acute and ambulant patients do not.
13	For ambulant patients I do not think that wards facing S.E. to S. are essential. For bed patients it is very desirable that the sun should have some access to the ward at some time of the day. Possibly this could be dispensed with if the beds could be wheeled on to a southern balcony.	I think the foregoing answers No. 2.
14	If a patient has to stay in bed all day long, I think it is well that the ward should get a fair amount of sun during the day.	If the patient is up and about during the day, the aspect of the ward does not matter so much.
15	I do not think for a minute that the modern medical treatment depends on all wards facing south-east or south. For the five years that I was at — hospital, very few of our wards faced in either of these directions, and our results were quite promising.	This question is answered by No. 1.

MOTOR ACCIDENT PATIENTS.

FEE FOR EMERGENCY TREATMENT UNDER THE ROAD TRAFFIC ACT, 1934.

Kindly prepared for the Bureau by W. E. C. BAYNES, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

1. The Road Traffic Act, 1934, in so far as it applies to hospitals, is to come into force on January 1st, 1935.

2. Section 16 of the Act provides, in effect, that where emergency treatment of any person injured in a motor accident is first given in a hospital, the hospital shall be entitled to recover *from the person using the car at the time of the accident the sum of 12s. 6d. in respect of each person treated.

3. "Emergency treatment" is defined as medical or surgical treatment or examination which is immediately required as a result of bodily injury. From this it would appear that whenever the victim of a motor accident is first treated at a hospital, such treatment gives rise to a claim for 12s. 6d. It is immaterial whether he is only treated as an out-patient, or whether he is retained as an in-patient.

4. The "person using the car" presumably means the owner, if present, whether driving or not, and otherwise the driver.

5. There is no restriction in this Act as to the persons in respect of whose treatment the fee of 12s. 6d. can be claimed. It is payable in respect of any person injured in the motor accident who receives emergency treatment, whether he is a pedestrian, a driver, a passenger, or whoever.

6. The claim for payment may be made to the user of the car orally at the time when the treatment is given, or by a request in writing, signed by an executive officer of the hospital, and stating the name and address of the hospital, the circumstances in which the emergency treatment was given, and that it was first given in the hospital.

7. A request in writing must be served within seven days of the emergency treatment, either by delivery to the user of the car, or by prepaid registered letter addressed to him at his usual or last known address. It would be advisable to serve this in every case when the fee is not paid immediately on a verbal request being made.

8. A chief officer of police is bound to supply the hospital, on request, with any information which he has as to the identification marks of a car involved in the accident, and as to the identity and address of the person using the car. This provision only applies to cases where the hospital is entitled to claim a fee of 12s. 6d. for emergency treatment—not to cases where the hospital wishes to make a claim against an insurance company under the Act of 1930.

9. The Act does not specifically provide for the case where two or more cars are involved, but presumably the claim for the 12s. 6d. fee may be made against the user of any car involved in the accident.

10. Although car users are required to be insured against their liability to pay this 12s. 6d. fee, nevertheless the payment of this fee by an insurance company is not such a payment under a policy as will entitle the hospital to claim a payment from the insurance company under s. 36 (2) of the Act of 1930 for the costs of treatment of a motor accident patient.

11. The fee of 12s. 6d. if actually received by a hospital, operates as a discharge up to that amount of any other claim that the hospital may have in respect of the emergency treatment.

12. Under the Road Traffic Act of 1930 (as amended) a hospital is required, when calculating the expenses reasonably incurred in affording treatment, to deduct from the total "any moneys actually received in payment of a specific charge." The 12s. 6d. fee, if actually received, must be considered as such a payment.

13. Thus, if the total expenses of treatment of an out-patient amount to £4, and the hospital actually received a 12s. 6d. fee, then the hospital can only claim £3 7s. 6d. from the insurance company. If, however, the expenses amount to £5 12s. 6d. or more, then the full £5 can be claimed from the insurance company. And so in the same way as regards the expenses of treatment of an in-patient.

* Note that the hospital does not make this claim directly against an insurance company—though, of course, the amount may ultimately be paid by it, see para. 10.

LOTTERIES.

CONDITIONS AFFECTING HOSPITALS.

Kindly prepared for the Bureau by W. E. C. BAYNES, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

1. The Betting and Lotteries Act, 1934, Part II, which deals with lotteries, came into force on the 1st January, 1935. The Act only applies to Great Britain, and not to Northern Ireland.

2. The Act does not give any definition of a lottery, but for practical purposes it may be taken to mean any scheme which provides for prizes being awarded to some of the subscribers to the scheme, the prize-winners being decided by a drawing of lots or by some sort of chance, as opposed to the winning of prizes by merit or skill.

3. The effect of the Act, stated shortly, in so far as hospitals are concerned, is that in future no lottery can be held by or for the benefit of a hospital unless it is held as an incident of an entertainment, and complies with the conditions set out below.

4. An entertainment is defined as a bazaar, sale of work, fête, or other entertainment of a similar character. It is immaterial whether it is limited to one day or lasts several days.

5. The lottery must not be the only or main inducement to persons to attend the entertainment. That is to say, there must be a genuine entertainment which may be expected to attract people for its own sake, and not merely because they know that a lottery is to be held there.

6. The whole proceeds of the entertainment (including the proceeds of the lottery) must be devoted to some object other than private gain, subject only to deductions for :

- (a) the expenses of the entertainment, excluding any expenses incurred in connection with the lottery.
- (b) the expenses incurred in printing lottery tickets.
- (c) not more than £10 on account of any expense in purchasing lottery prizes.

In other words, no expenses connected with the lottery may be paid for out of the receipts from the sale of lottery tickets except the cost of printing the tickets and a maximum of £10 for the purchase of prizes. Nor may any other expenses in connection with the lottery be paid for out of the proceeds of the entertainment at which the lottery is conducted.

7. No money prizes may be given.

8. Tickets for chances in the lottery may only be sold on the premises where the entertainment takes place and during the progress of the entertainment. No tickets may be sold or distributed beforehand.

9. The result of the lottery is only to be declared on the premises where the entertainment takes place and during its progress. It will apparently be an offence for a newspaper to publish the result of a lottery even after the announcement has been made at the entertainment.

10. If any of the above conditions are broken, every person concerned in the promotion of the lottery becomes liable to the penalties mentioned below, unless he can prove that the breach occurred without his knowledge.

11. The maximum penalty for promoting an unlawful lottery, or for taking part in such a lottery (except by buying tickets), or for committing a breach of any of the above conditions in the conduct of a lawful lottery, is a fine of £500 for a first offence, and for a second offence under the same section of the Act a fine of £750 or imprisonment for one year, or both. These heavy penalties are obviously intended to prevent anyone from promoting an unlawful lottery; the breach of a condition in the conduct of an otherwise lawful lottery would presumably be punished by a small fine.

12. There is a section in the Act legalising certain private lotteries, but its intention appears to be only to authorise the holding of such sweepstakes as are frequently promoted in private clubs and similar institutions among their own members and for the benefit of the members or of the institutions themselves. The conditions laid down for the conduct of these private lotteries make it impracticable for such a lottery to be held by a hospital.

13. Where, however, any hospital society has as one of its objects the raising of funds for the support of the hospital, it may be possible for such a society to promote a private lottery amongst its own members with the object of paying over the greater part of the proceeds to the hospital.

January, 1935.

THE WORK OF A HOSPITAL ALMONER *

DUTIES.

THE work of a Hospital Almoner is determined by the Board or Medical Committee responsible for her appointment, and may include :

I. ADMINISTRATIVE SIDE.

1. To prevent the attendance of patients who may be properly referred to a specialist for private treatment, to a Panel doctor or to the Public Assistance Authority.
2. To collect additional hospital benefits from approved societies.
3. To ensure the smooth working of a Contributory Scheme, where such is in operation.
4. To assess patients' payments towards the cost of their treatment and maintenance.
5. To collect the fees from patients in paying wards.

II. IN CO-OPERATION WITH THE MEDICAL STAFF.

1. To arrange convalescence, special care being taken to meet the needs of individual patients.
2. To arrange for the supply of surgical instruments and appliances recommended by the medical staff. To secure that as far as possible payment for these should not be made out of hospital funds.
3. To see that surgical instruments and appliances are properly worn and kept in repair.
4. To arrange for the attendance of the district nurse at patients' homes.
5. To arrange for the admission to suitable Homes of chronic and incurable patients.
6. To assist patients to obtain diet or extra nourishment.
7. To report to the medical staff, when desired, on patients' home circumstances and history.
8. To deal with patients' difficulties at home in order to contribute towards their ease of mind and consequent recovery.
9. To facilitate in any way the carrying out of prescribed treatment.
10. To undertake investigation for research, if desired.

III. CO-OPERATION WITH OUTSIDE BODIES.

1. To co-operate with the Public Health Authorities in cases of Tuberculosis and in Maternity cases.
2. To co-operate with the School Authorities in cases of children of school age.
3. To enlist the help of the Public Assistance Authorities and charitable societies when help is required for individual patients.

THE SELECTION AND TRAINING OF STUDENTS.

This summary of the duties of a hospital almoner indicates the wide scope of the work. It is clear that women of character and personality are required, and that they will need special training for this branch of social service.

The Institute of Hospital Almoners has always required a high standard of its students. It is desirable that candidates should have had a sound education up to the age of 18 with a background of general culture. In practice it is found that the work appeals very greatly to women who have had a University education, and also to some who have held other posts and who seek wider scope for their energies and sympathies.

* Contributed by the Institute of Hospital Almoners.

OBJECTS OF THE INSTITUTE.

- 1.—To select, train and arrange for the training of, suitable candidates for the work of Hospital Almoners.
- 2.—To grant certificates to trained and qualified students.
- 3.—To keep a register of trained Almoners.
- 4.—To recommend trained Almoners to Hospital Authorities.
- 5.—To extend and develop the work of Hospital Almoners.

THE WORK OF A HOSPITAL ALMONER

Candidates should be between the ages of 20 and 35, but no certificate is granted under the age of 22.

Every candidate is interviewed by a Selection Committee, and has, before the interview, an opportunity of spending two days in an almoner's department in order to see something of the work at first hand.

It is essential that every almoner should have a sound knowledge of economics and social conditions, of social legislation and of the many agencies that exist for the assistance of those in distress as well as a thorough understanding of the functions of an almoner's department and its place in hospital administration.

The training provided by the Institute of Hospital Almoners varies according to the academic qualifications of the student and may be divided into three parts; theoretical, instruction in practical social work of a general nature, and practical experience at hospital under the guidance of a certificated almoner.

Students without academic qualifications must qualify for the Social Study Diploma or Certificate of a University School of Social Study. This requires two academic sessions of nine months each. Four months' training with the Charity Organisation Society is required, which may be completed during the University course if two consecutive months are given during the long vacation. The training at hospital requires eleven months' full time work, which may be divided into two parts, one before and one after the academic work.

Students who hold a Social Study Diploma or Certificate from a University may be accepted for a practical training of eleven months' hospital work, provided that they have completed practical work which can be accepted by the Institute as the equivalent of four months' training in family case work with the Charity Organisation Society.

Students who hold a University degree in which History, Economics or Psychology form a sufficient part may be allowed to undertake only the practical training of fifteen months, which comprises four months' training with the Charity Organisation Society and eleven months' work with a certificated almoner at hospital.

Other graduates may be accepted for a two years' training comprising one session at a University School of Social Study and fifteen months' practical work as above.

Candidates who are accepted for practical training only may begin the course at any time. For other students the academic session begins in October, and it is advisable that some months' practical work should be undertaken before that.

CERTIFICATES.

Certificates are granted to students who have passed the University examinations and who have obtained satisfactory reports on their practical work. The Executive Council reserves to itself the right to extend or to terminate a students' training at any time should the reports on her work be unsatisfactory.

FEES.

University Fees for the Diploma or Certificate course must be paid direct to the University concerned. These vary from about thirty to fifty guineas for the two years' course. The fee to the Institute is twenty guineas, which includes both Charity Organisation Society and hospital training. The Institute fees are payable in three instalments at stated dates.

PROVINCIAL TRAINING.

Selection and Advisory Committees have been appointed in connection with the Universities at Leeds, Liverpool, Birmingham, Newcastle, Edinburgh and Glasgow. The whole of the academic work and part of the practical training can be undertaken in these cities, but all students are required to take part of their practical training in London. Students accepted by local Selection and Advisory Committees are required to pay to the Institute a fee of eight guineas (exclusive of Charity Organisation Society training), and to the local committee such other fees as they may determine. The cost of Charity Organisation Society training, when required, is five guineas for four months. For a shorter period the fee is proportionately less.

THE WORK OF A HOSPITAL ALMONER

OFFICES.

The offices of the Institute are in Tavistock House (North), Tavistock Square, W.C. 1 (in the British Medical Association House), and the Secretary will be glad to see by appointment anyone who is interested in the work or who desires further information.

ORGANISATION AND STAFF OF A TYPICAL VOLUNTARY HOSPITAL.

Kindly prepared for the Bureau by C. E. H. LLOYD, of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

PART I.—A TYPICAL ORGANISATION.

Introduction.

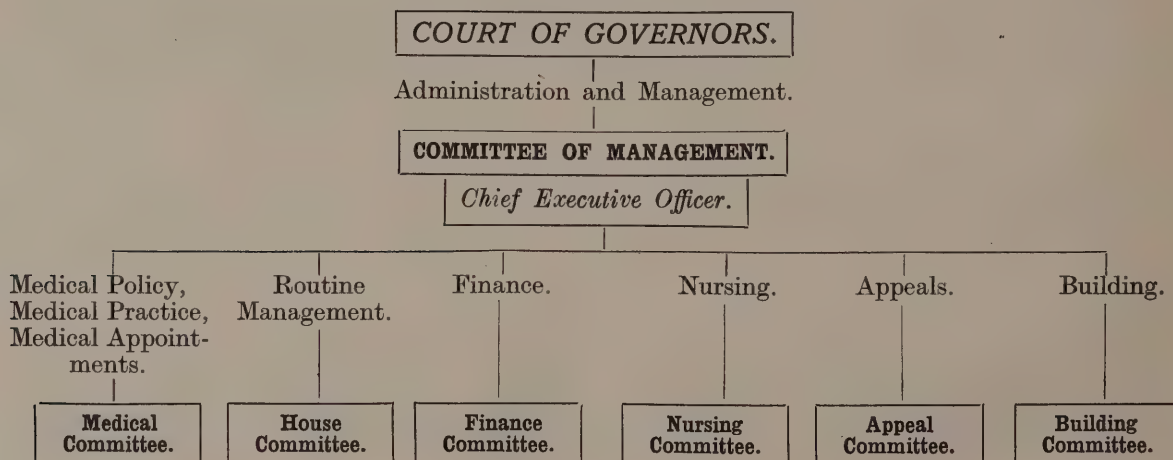

In "OUTLINES FOR A TYPICAL CONSTITUTION AND GOVERNING BODY OF A VOLUNTARY HOSPITAL" (Memorandum No. 83), an outline was given of the powers vested in the Governors which are usually delegated to committees and officers of the hospital. It is hoped that the following charts and work plans, showing responsible committees (e.g. COMMITTEE OF MANAGEMENT), the activity or function controlled (e.g. Nursing) and finally the staff or officer (e.g. Chief Executive Officer) charged with the detail of the work, will assist by its brevity in making the usual departmental organisation of a hospital easily intelligible. In many instances the existing organisation may differ in detail, but the chain of responsibility and main grouping of activities have been proved by time and experience to be the most reliable scheme for the efficient management of the hospital.

Committee Organisation.

Chart I illustrates how the powers of the Hospital Governors are delegated and exercised by the usual committees provided by the Constitution. The responsibility of the Chief Executive Officer to the Committee of Management of the hospital in respect of all its activities (vide Chart II), is the essential link of the organisation.

CHART I.

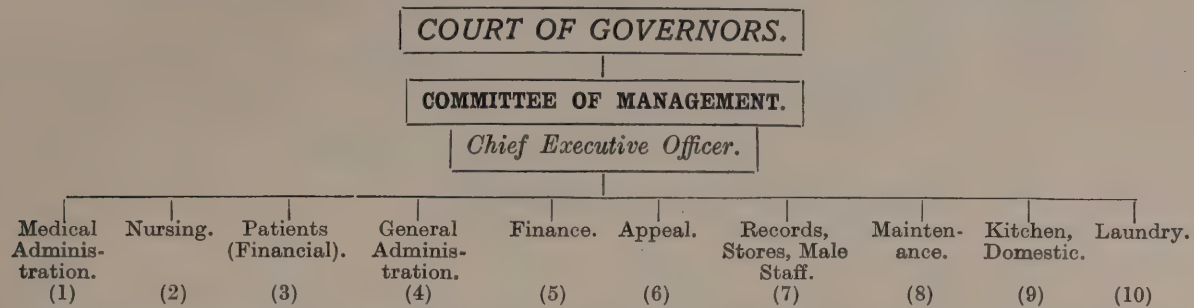

Departmental Organisation.

Charts II, III and IV illustrate the usual departmental subdivision of a typical 300-bed, 100-bed and 30-bed hospital, respectively. It should be noted that in addition to the officers responsible for the various departments who are shown in the charts, other officers are appointed who usually advise only when called upon by the Committee of Management. These are the Treasurer, Trustees, House Visitors, Auditor, Solicitor, Consulting Architect, Consulting Surveyor, and Consulting Engineer. These officers differ from Heads of Departments in that, usually, they do not act upon instructions initiating from the Chief Executive Officer.

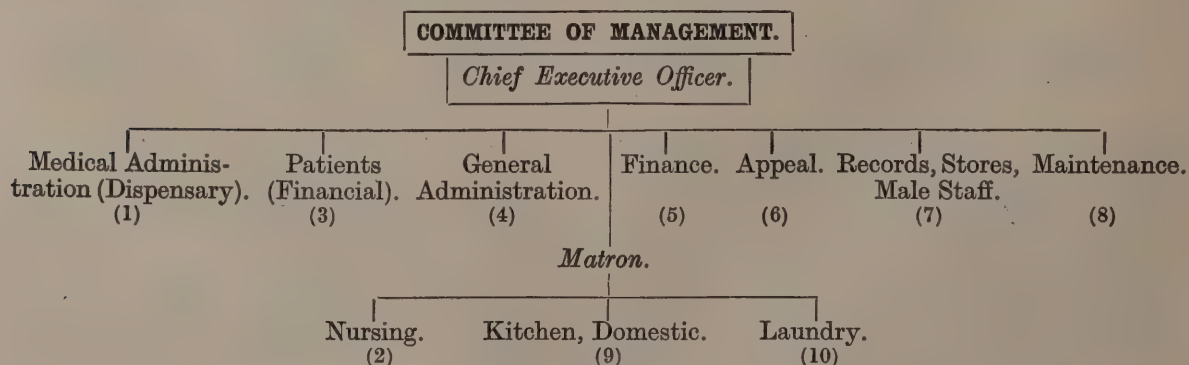

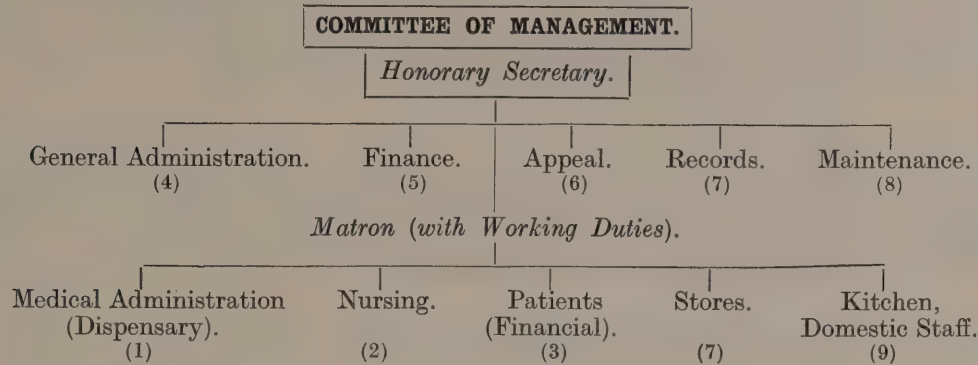

CHART IV.

A TYPICAL DEPARTMENTAL ORGANISATION OF A 30-BED HOSPITAL.

- Steward, or Almoner.

Discipline.

The Chief Executive Officer is responsible, so far as his powers permit, for the Resident Medical (and Technical) Staff, Junior Administrative (male and female) and Porter Staffs. The Matron is responsible for the Nursing Staff, so far as her powers permit, and all female staff except Junior Administrative Staff. In a 30-bed hospital the Matron is responsible for all Domestic Staff.

Medical Organisation in a Typical 300-Bed Hospital.

The Honorary Medical Staff of a hospital are commonly represented upon the Committee of Management, take their share in the routine administration and guide the Committee in matters where lay and medical interests are jointly involved. In addition, the Honorary Staff form a Medical Committee charged with the responsibility, in association with the Lay Committee, over Wards, Out-patients' Department, Special Departments, Medical Records, Laboratories, Museums, Dispensary and Medical Stores.

An alternative to this system is occasionally found. The Honorary Staff are not represented upon the Committee of Management, but in order that the Committee of Management may have the valuable advice of their Physicians and Surgeons a Joint Committee composed of representatives from the Medical Committee and from the Committee of Management is formed. This Joint Committee, to which matters are referred both by the Committee of Management and by the Medical Committee, provides the necessary machinery and ensures that the views of the Medical Staff are adequately presented to the Committee of Management itself.

The functions of the Medical Committee include the general efficiency of the medical side of the hospital's work, questions of medical practice, policy and medical appointments; admission and care of patients; duties of Resident Medical Staff and technical assistants; nurses' lectures; co-ordination of the medical services generally and co-operation with General Practitioners outside the hospital.

Routine medical administration (shewn as (1) in the foregoing charts), although one of the responsibilities of the Chief Executive Officer, is usually delegated to the Senior Resident Medical Officer except that the Pathologist generally presents the routine requirements of his Department to the Chief Executive Officer direct. It is the general practice also for the Senior Resident Medical Officer, working closely with the Special Departments, the Registrar and Pharmacist, to check routine requirements for these Departments. In smaller hospitals the senior or only House Surgeon is usually charged with these duties. When there is no House Surgeon members of the Honorary Medical Staff are generally individually responsible for their own requisitions to the Chief Executive Officer.

All appointments to the honorary medical and salaried staffs are made with the authority of the Governors. The duty to provide the necessary personnel, posts it is sometimes assisted by a Selection Sub-Committee. With regard to other appointments practice varies, but, under usual circumstances, the advice administrative and male domestic staffs, while the Matron usually advises regarding the nursing and female domestic staffs.

PATIENT AND CASUALTY DEPARTMENTS

MEMORANDUM No. 92.

Recov- ery Room.	Service.	Sunlight and Radiant Heat.	Venereal Dis- eases.	Waiting Room.	X-ray.	Remarks.
					Oak Blocks	Composition floors in most departments, which have not proved satisfactory. Wherever there has been considerable wear it has had to be patched with cement. Oak floors become slippery if polished and wear badly if washed.
	Wood Blocks	Wood Blocks		Terrazzo	Rubber on concrete	Where there is heavy traffic the rubber does not adhere to the concrete base, buckles up in places and requires re-sticking periodically.
		Korkoid		Red Tiles	Korkoid	The flooring in most departments is Durato . The Secretary recommends for Waiting Room, Lavatories, Operating Theatre, Recovery Room, etc. Terrazzo . X-ray, and rooms where Electrical treatments are given— Korkoid . Corridors and other rooms— Western Hemlock in narrow boards covered with red Triolin .
Terrazzo			Terrazzo	Terrazzo		The Wood Blocks are polished, except in the Massage Dept.
Hard- wood Blocks				Terrazzo		If the subfloor is in contact with the earth it is advisable to lay asphalt between two thicknesses of concrete before fixing Cork or Wood-Block floors.
	Grano- lithic			Grano- lithic	Pitch Pine Wood Blocks	The various departments are floored in either Terrazzo or Wood . Granolithic . Wears well subject to surface cracks. Never looks clean, even after washing. Linoleum . Wears well if polished regularly. Wood Blocks . Wear badly with traffic of beds and trollies. Regular washing softens grain of wood. Terrazzo . Clean smooth surface, subject to surface cracks. Vitreous Mosaic . Wears well, but chips and works out where subjected to heavy traffic.
	1/4" Cork Lino with water- proof base			1/4" Cork Lino with water- proof base	1/4" Cork Lino with water- proof base	Would prefer Rubber sheeting in X-ray Dept., but cost is rather prohibitive.
				Terrazzo	Pitch Pine Blocks	Floors of all rooms except Operating Theatre have been laid in 1 1/4" Bruce Oak , tongued and grooved and secret nailed. All floors have proved quite satisfactory. Terrazzo in all departments except Gymnasium and Nursing Staff Room. Terrazzo has proved very satisfactory. The Pitch Pine floors are of 100 per cent. Rift Sawn Blocks tongued and grooved all round and lightly polished.
Terrazzo		Maple		Maple Terrazzo	Maple	" Decolite " is put down in a plastic form. It must be laid on perfectly dry ground, and well keyed.
	Maple	Maple		Red com- position	Maple	Floors of Casualty and Waiting Rooms not considered satisfactory. The Asphalt is dark brown in colour and immediately after cleaning is glossy but very soon becomes spotted and shows every footmark.

HANGER LIGHT METAL & WILLOW LIMBS

Sole Contractors to the Ministry of Pensions for Light Metal Limbs for Limbless Ex-Service Men.
Contractors to Royal Surgical Aid Society; French, Canadian and S. African Governments and Hospitals.

FIG. 1. The patient is a woman, aged about 40, suffering from congenital deformity of the left leg. The deformed limb is laced into the blocked leather corset and boot. The appliance is provided with hip and knee joint in the normal position, enabling the patient to walk in comfort with a normal gait and a natural appearance.

FIG. 2.

FIG. 2. This patient suffered from bilateral congenital deformity and had never walked. The deformed limbs lace into the sockets provided, the feet resting in leather stirrups. After about three weeks' practice, the patient was able to walk without difficulty with the aid of a stick.

FIG. 3.

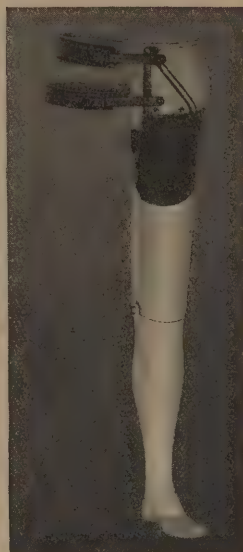

FIG. 4.

FIG. 3. Hanger Light Metal Leg as supplied for above-knee amputation. It is provided with ball-bearing knee joints. The tension of the knee is controlled by adjustable friction means to suit the patient's varying requirements for fast or slow walking. Also made in willow.

FIG. 4. Hanger type Light Metal Leg for amputation at the hip joint. This leg is provided with an automatically locking hip joint which is released when in the sitting position. The difficulty of giving a comfortable and natural sitting position for this type of amputation has been completely overcome.

With 65 years' experience, the largest works in the world, the finest technical research department, and a record number of over 100,000 satisfied wearers, there is no type of amputation or deformity which cannot be satisfactorily fitted by the Hanger organization.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Object of Survey.

THE object of this Survey is the presentation in as full detail as possible of the position of the Hospitals in Great Britain and Ireland with reference to certain special features which may be summarised thus :—

- (a) The facilities available for treatment,
- (b) The extent to which they are utilised,
- (c) The annual cost of maintaining these facilities, and
- (d) The sources and extent of the funds by which they are maintained.

Arrangement of Tables.

In the main tables the Voluntary Hospitals are grouped under the headings :—

Group A. Hospitals having 100 or more beds.

Group B. Hospitals having 30 to 99 beds.

Group C. Hospitals having less than 30 beds.

In addition, Tables of the details of the work and finances of the following special groups are given :—

Adjustments to figures.

An attempt has been made to present the figures of all hospitals upon the basis of the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts. Slight divergences from the figures published in the Annual Reports of a few hospitals will consequently be found.

The figures in the Tables giving particulars of groups of hospitals include the returns made by a few hospitals covering a period longer than 12 months. This is generally due to some such cause as the changing of the date of the termination of the official year. The figures for these odd periods are omitted from the Tables giving particulars of individual hospitals. It follows, therefore, that a comparatively small difference between the totals in two sets of Tables will be found.

Definition of London area.

For the purposes of the Statistical Tables and the Directory of Voluntary Hospitals, London is regarded as the area covered by King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, viz., 11 miles from St. Paul's Cathedral. This area includes portions of the counties of Essex, Hertfordshire, Kent, Middlesex and Surrey in addition to the whole of the County of London. Similarly, all hospitals under the control of the London County Council are grouped together, whether they are situated in the County of London or not.

"Available" beds of London hospitals.

The figures of "available" beds of the London hospitals are the average daily bed complement during the year after deducting beds temporarily closed for Rebuilding, Extensions, Repairs, or other causes.

Thanks.

The Editors desire to express their thanks to King Edward's Hospital Fund for London for the leave, so kindly granted, to use the figures in its Statistical Report on the London hospitals for the purpose of compiling the Tables which appear in the Year-Book ; to all those Chairmen and Officers of the Voluntary Hospitals who so kindly supply the information upon which the statistics are compiled, and to the Public Authorities who also most kindly give particulars concerning the institutions for which they are responsible.

HOTLOCK HOT FOOD

(REGD)

Hospitals using Hotlocks say :—

- "We are using for our Doctor's quarters, and some of the wards, the 'Hotlock Conveyor' and we find it most satisfactory."
- "Hotlock Trolleys now serve all our wards and there is no doubt as to the efficiency of this class of dinner trolley."
- "We installed a battery of six charcoal-heated Hotlock Conveyors. Cost : Approximately 2½d. per day per ward ; repairs for two years, NIL. The result is that we have eliminated the old complaint of cold food, as every patient has the trolley wheeled to the bedside and food served piping hot."
- "We studied all types of food conveyors on the market and eventually decided upon 'Hotlock' for all our wards—after 2½ years' service they look as good as new. The cost of fuel per full-sized trolley is £3 10s. 0d. per annum, and this is undoubtedly offset by the great advantage resulting in patients having hot food served to them and the greatly reduced waste of food resulting therefrom."

Interesting facts : HOTLOCKS are inexpensive. The cost of upkeep is negligible. Absolutely safe and once heated require no further attention. They keep any kind of food hot and unspoiled.

They are in use in over three hundred Hospitals.

All models can be obtained in STAYBRITE STAINLESS STEEL which is easily cleaned and completely rust-proof.

TRAINING SCHOOLS FOR NURSES.

I. CONDITIONS UNDER WHICH HOSPITALS ARE APPROVED AS TRAINING SCHOOLS.

II. SCHEMES UNDER WHICH NURSES MAY BE TRAINED FOR ADMISSION TO THE STATE REGISTER.

CONDITIONS UNDER WHICH HOSPITALS ARE APPROVED AS TRAINING SCHOOLS.

BEFORE any hospital or group of hospitals can be approved the authorities of such hospitals are required to submit to the General Nursing Council particulars as to—

- (a) training material available;
- (b) the variety of experience assured to each probationer;
- (c) in the case of grouped hospitals information as to the hospital in which each variety of experience is to be obtained, and
- (d) the educational facilities offered and the systematic arrangements made whereby the attendance of each probationer at a series of lectures on the prescribed subjects is assured.

(1) For Training in General Nursing.

(a) As a Complete Training School.

The hospital must satisfy the Council that it provides experience in the four main services—medical, surgical, gynæcological, and children's diseases, and also an adequate staff and equipment for teaching in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus.

That it has at least one Resident Medical Officer.

That the period of training is not less than three years.

In a hospital where the work is mainly surgical approximately one-third of the beds should be devoted to medical work.

In a hospital where the work is mainly medical, approximately one-third of the beds should be devoted to surgical work.

(b) Associated Hospitals.

- (i) There are other hospitals which are sufficiently large but from deficiency of clinical material in some branch cannot be approved as Complete Training Schools. Such hospitals will be required to associate themselves with another hospital or hospitals in order to supply for their nurses that part of the training in which they are deficient.

The hospitals applying for approval under this category must each have a Resident Medical Officer.

The period of training must extend over three years and six months, of which not less than six months must be spent in the hospital which is supplying the deficiency of clinical material.

The Council is prepared to consider any scheme for carrying out such an arrangement, and it will be for the hospitals who propose to associate themselves to satisfy the Council that the arrangements will be adequate to afford a complete training.

- (ii) The Council is prepared to consider schemes whereby a general hospital for men only, one for women only, and one for children only, may respectively work together to furnish the necessary training according to the prescribed Syllabus. The period of training may be divided amongst the three hospitals as may be convenient, provided that adequate training in the four main services is assured, and that the subjects of the Preliminary Examination (see Preface to Syllabus of Subjects for Examination) are taught in the first hospital to which the nurse goes for training, so far as they can be taught in that hospital. The training in this case extends over four years if the Council so decide.

Such hospitals will be entitled "Associated Hospitals."

(c) Affiliated Groups of General Hospitals.

There are many hospitals which are not sufficiently large to provide adequate clinical material, teaching staff, and equipment for complete training, but these may be approved in affiliation with a hospital of the kind dealt with in Regulation (1) (a) above.

The period of training must extend over four years, of which the first two years must be spent in the smaller hospital in preparation for the Preliminary Examination. The Probationers should be transferred to the larger hospital for the final two years, after passing the Preliminary Examination.

TRAINING SCHOOLS FOR NURSES

The Council is prepared to consider any scheme for carrying out such an arrangement, and it will be for the hospitals who propose to affiliate themselves to satisfy the Council that the requirements for a four years' training are fulfilled by the scheme proposed.

Such hospitals will be entitled "Affiliated Hospitals."

(d) Affiliated Groups of Special and General Hospitals.

Nurses trained for two years in approved Special Hospitals as mentioned below will be eligible for the Final Examination for the General Part of the Register when they have undergone a subsequent two years' training in a General Hospital as defined in (1) (a).

The two years' training in the Special Hospital must include the subjects of the Preliminary Examination. This examination must be taken from the Special Hospital.

Special Hospitals to which the above rule applies.

Fever, Gynæcological, Ophthalmic, Ear and Nose, Cancer, Incurable, Orthopædic, Tuberculosis, Urinary Diseases, Venereal Diseases, Nervous Diseases, Children's Diseases, and (provided that the applicant has had training in bedside nursing for not less than six months) Mental Diseases.

In exceptional cases, on the recommendation of the Education and Examination Committee, and after detailed consideration of each case, the Council may permit nurses to proceed from a Special to a General hospital forthwith after passing the Preliminary Examination, or under special conditions (after completing one year's training) and after remaining for the two ensuing years at the said General Hospital to return to the said Special Hospital for the completion of the fourth year of training, but that no such permission be granted unless the authorities of the Special Hospital satisfy the Council:—

- (a) that the training of such nurses will be adequately continued; and
- (b) that the nursing of their patients presents difficulties which form a claim for special consideration.

Such hospitals will be entitled "Affiliated Hospitals."

(2) For Training in Male Nursing.

The hospital must satisfy the Council that it furnishes adequate material for the training of Male Nurses and provides the requisite staff and equipment for teaching in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus.

The period of training must be not less than three years in a Complete Training School for Male Nurses;

or

four years in an Affiliated Training School for Male Nurses;

or three and a half years in an Associated Training School for Male Nurses.

(3) For Training in Mental Nursing, and for Nurses for Mental Defectives.

The hospital must satisfy the Council that it furnishes adequate material for the training of Mental Nurses, and provides the requisite staff and equipment for teaching in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus.

The period of training must be not less than three years, including not less than six months bedside nursing as detailed in Section IV, Part I, of the Syllabus of Subjects for Examination, before the candidate enters for the Preliminary Examination.

Note.—Those Institutions which cannot provide sufficient bedside nursing for their staff can do so by arrangement or by affiliation with a General Hospital, subject to the approval of the Council.

(4) For Training in Sick Children's Nursing.

The hospital must satisfy the Council that it furnishes adequate material for the training of Sick Children's Nurses, and provides the requisite staff and equipment for teaching in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus.

The period of training must be not less than three years.

There should be at least one Resident Medical Officer.

(5) For Training in Fever Nursing.

(a) As a Complete Training School.

The hospital must satisfy the Council that it furnishes adequate material for the training of Fever Nurses, and provides the requisite staff and equipment for teaching in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus.

The period of training must be not less than two years.

TRAINING SCHOOLS FOR NURSES

(b) As an Affiliated Training School.

The Council is prepared to consider a scheme by which a Fever Hospital which has not sufficient material to afford a complete training may affiliate itself to a Complete Training School for Fever Nurses.

The period of training under this category must be not less than two years and six months, of which not less than one year must be spent at the Complete Training School for Fever Nurses.

The Preliminary Examination must be passed before the nurse enters the Complete Training School for Fever Nurses.

Notes.—(1) The General Nursing Council considers that it would be greatly in the interests of the training of nurses if preliminary training schools could be instituted in various centres through England and Wales.

(2) In every case the Institution where the training takes place must be "either an Institution approved by the Council in that behalf, or in the service of the Admiralty, the Army Council, or the Air Council." (Nurses' Registration Act 1919, 3(2) (b).)

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE BRITISH X-RAY AND RADIUM PROTECTION COMMITTEE.

FOURTH REVISED REPORT (JUNE 1934).

WITH the object of arresting the sequence of casualties to X-ray and radium workers, the British X-ray and Radium Protection Committee was formed in 1921, as the result of co-operative action between the Royal Society of Medicine, the Röntgen Society, the British Association for the Advancement of Radiology and Physiotherapy (now the British Institute of Radiology incorporated with the Röntgen Society), the Institute of Physics, the Radium Institute, London, and the National Physical Laboratory. The personnel of the Committee was afterwards widened to include representatives from the provincial schools.

The Committee issued its first recommendations in July 1921. Successive revised reports followed in December 1923 and May 1927. At the instance of the British Committee, International Recommendations for X-ray and Radium Protection were adopted at Stockholm in 1928 by the Second International Congress of Radiology. These were largely based on the British proposals.

The problem of adequate protection for the X-ray worker has been substantially eased by the introduction of the self-protected tube and more recently by the "shock-proof" tube and equipment. Account is taken of this in the present (Fourth) Report of the British Committee, which follows in the main the form of the International Recommendations, and contains a number of alterations and additions based on the experience of the Committee and of the National Physical Laboratory in its inspection and testing work carried out in association with the Committee.

Copies of the Report may be had on application to the Hon. Secretaries of the Protection Committee at 32, Welbeck Street, W.1, or the Director, The National Physical Laboratory, Teddington, Middlesex.

PROTECTIVE MEASURES.

The protective measures recommended are dealt with under the following sections :—

- I. Introduction.
- II. Working Hours and other Conditions.
- III. General X-ray and Radium Recommendations.

- IV. X-ray Protective Recommendations.
- V. Electrical Precautions in X-ray Rooms.
- VI. Film Storage Recommendations.
- VII. X-rays for Industrial and Research Purposes.
- VIII. Radium Protective Recommendations.
- IX. Electrical Precautions with Electro-medical Apparatus.
- X. Ultra-violet Therapy.
- XI. General.

I. INTRODUCTION.

1. The dangers of over-exposure to X-rays and radium can be avoided by the provision of adequate protection and suitable working conditions. It is the duty of those in charge of X-ray and radium departments to ensure such conditions for their personnel. The known effects to be guarded against are :—

- (a) Injuries to the superficial tissues;
- (b) Derangements of internal organs and changes in the blood.

2. The evidence at present available appears to suggest that under satisfactory working conditions a person in normal health can tolerate exposure to X-rays to an extent of about 0.2 international röntgens (r.) per day. On the basis of continuous irradiation during a working day of seven hours this figure corresponds to a dosage rate of 10^{-5} r. per second. The protective values given in these recommendations are generally in harmony with this figure under average conditions. No similar tolerance dose is at present available in the case of radium gamma rays.

II. WORKING HOURS AND OTHER CONDITIONS.

3. The following working hours, etc., are recommended for whole-time X-ray and radium workers :—

- (a) Not more than seven working hours a day. Whole-time X-ray and radium workers should not be called upon for other hospital service.
- (b) Not more than five working days a week. The off-days to be spent as much as possible out of doors.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF X-RAY AND RADIUM PROTECTION COMMITTEE

- (c) Not less than four weeks holiday a year, preferably consecutively.
- (d) No person should be employed as an X-ray or radium worker whose blood (as tested by a complete investigation of the blood), or general health, is unsatisfactory.

Before beginning work or training, the normal leucocyte level should be found by making three total and differential blood-counts in the afternoon. (The counts may be made on different afternoons, or on the same afternoon at half-hourly intervals.) If none of the total counts reach 6,000 per c.mm. and none of the lymphocyte counts reach 1,200 per c.mm. the applicant should not be accepted for service.

Periodical total and differential blood-counts of the worker should be made during the afternoon period, every six months in the case of the X-ray worker, and every three months in the case of the radium worker. The six-month period may be considerably extended in the case of X-ray workers in departments which otherwise comply with the Recommendations of the Protection Committee.

If at any time there is found to be a decided and sustained drop in either the total leucocyte or the total lymphocyte count the worker should cease work and be placed under treatment for an adequate period. On resumption of work every care should be taken and the circumstances of the work should be reviewed so as to prevent a recurrence.

III. GENERAL X-RAY AND RADIUM RECOMMENDATIONS.

4. X-ray and radium departments should not be situated below ground-floor level. Damp rooms should be avoided.

5. All rooms, including photographic dark rooms, should be provided with windows, affording good natural lighting and ready facilities for admitting sunshine and fresh air whenever possible.

6. All rooms, including photographic dark rooms, should be provided with adequate exhaust ventilation capable of renewing the air of the room not less than ten times an hour. Low-level air inlets and high-level outlets should be arranged to afford cross-wise ventilation of the room.

7. All rooms should preferably be decorated in light colours.

8. A working temperature of about 18° to 21° C. (65° to 70° F.) is desirable in X-ray rooms.

9. X-ray rooms should be large enough to permit a convenient lay-out of the equipment. A minimum floor area of 250 sq. ft. (25 sq. m.) is recommended for X-ray rooms, and 100 sq. ft. (10 sq. m.) for dark rooms. Ceilings should be not less than 11 ft. (3.5 m.) high.

10. X-ray generating apparatus employing mechanical rectifiers should preferably be placed in a separate room from the X-ray tube.

IV. X-RAY PROTECTIVE RECOMMENDATIONS.

11. An X-ray operator should on no account expose himself to a direct beam of X-rays.

12. An operator should place himself as far as practicable from the X-ray tube. It should be borne in mind that if valve tubes are used improperly they may produce X-rays.

13. The X-ray tube should be self-protected, or otherwise surrounded as completely as possible with protective material of adequate lead equivalent.*

14. The following lead equivalents are recommended under average conditions:—

X-rays generated by peak voltages.	Minimum equivalent thickness of lead.
Not exceeding	mm.
kv.
100	1.5
150	2.5
200	4
300	9
350	12
400	15

(A) DIAGNOSTIC WORK.

15. In the case of diagnostic work with other than completely protected tubes, the operator should be afforded protection from stray radiation by a screen of a minimum lead equivalent of 1 mm.

16. Screening examinations should be conducted as rapidly as possible with minimum intensities and apertures. The material of the

* It should be pointed out that the protective lead values of certain materials are much affected by a change in the exciting voltage of the X-ray tube. This applies particularly to materials in which elements lighter than lead furnish the chief protection. In the case of protective slabs or plasters made up of mixtures of materials, the difficulty of securing uniform mixing should be met by a generous margin of safety in estimating the required thickness. As a rough working rule, solid brick and concrete are equivalent to about 1 per cent. of the same thickness of lead.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF X-RAY AND RADIUM PROTECTION COMMITTEE

diaphragm should be equivalent to not less than 2 mm. of lead. The diaphragm should be of the rectangular type and the design should be such as to permit it to be completely closed. To prevent the lateral escape of direct radiation, the diaphragm should be fitted within a protective enclosure. Palpation with the hand should be reduced to the minimum.

17. The lead glass of fluorescent screens should have the protective values recommended in paragraph 14.

18. In the case of screening stands, the fluorescent screen should, if necessary on account of the small size of the screen, be provided with a protective "surround" so that adequate protection against direct radiation is afforded for all positions of the screen and diaphragm.

19. Screening couches and stands should provide adequate arrangements for protecting the operator against scattered radiation from the patient. In the case of a couch, this can take the form of a protective screen, mounted on the carriage and of material equivalent to not less than $\frac{1}{2}$ mm. of lead. The screen should have a width of not less than 2 ft., and should project 9 or 10 in. above the couch. In the case of a screening stand, an "apron" of protective material not less than 2 ft. wide and of not less than $\frac{1}{2}$ mm. lead equivalent should be attached to the lower edge of the screen.

20. Protective gloves, which should be suitably lined with fabric or other material, should have a protective value not less than $\frac{1}{8}$ mm. lead throughout both back and front (including fingers and wrist). Protective aprons should have a minimum lead value of $\frac{1}{2}$ mm.

(B) TREATMENT.

The use of some form of calibrated ionisation dose-meter during treatment is strongly recommended.

21. In the case of X-ray treatment, the operator should be stationed outside the X-ray room behind a protective wall, the lead equivalent of which will depend on the circumstances. In the case of a single X-ray tube excited by voltages up to about 200 kv., the protective wall should have a lead equivalent of not less than 2 mm. For higher exciting voltages or more than one X-ray tube, or for heavy tube-currents, the wall protection should be proportionately increased. The wall protection should also be increased if the protective value of the X-ray tube enclosure falls short of the values given in paragraph 14. In such event the remaining walls, floor and ceiling may also be required to provide supplementary protection for adjacent occupants to an extent depending on the circumstances.

22. Inspection windows in screens and walls should have protective lead values equivalent to that of the surrounding screen or wall.

23. In those cases in which an X-ray tube is continuously excited and treatment periods are regulated by means of a shutter, some form of remote control should be provided for the shutter to ensure that the operator is not exposed to direct radiation while manipulating the shutter or filter.

Efficient safeguards should be adopted to avoid the omission of a metal filter in X-ray treatment.

V. ELECTRICAL PRECAUTIONS IN X-RAY ROOMS.

Attention should be drawn to the fact that with the more powerful X-ray plants in use to-day the possibilities of fatalities are increased.

24. The floor-covering of the X-ray room should be of insulating material such as wood, rubber, or linoleum. Rubber-soled shoes form a useful supplementary precaution.

25. Where permanent overhead conductors are employed they should be not less than 9 ft. (3 m.) from the floor. They should consist of stout metal tubing or other coronaless type of conductor. The associated connecting leads should be of coronaless wire kept taut by suitable rheophores.

26. Wherever possible earthed guards or earthed sheaths should be provided to shield the more adjacent parts of the high-tension system. Unshielded leads to the X-ray tube should be in positions as remote as possible from the operator and the patient. The use of "shock-proof" X-ray equipment in which the high-tension circuit is completely enclosed in earthed conductors is specially recommended. In all cases, however, indiscriminate handling of X-ray tubes during operation should be forbidden. Unless there are reasons to the contrary, metal parts of the apparatus and room should be efficiently earthed.

27. Main and supply switches should be very accessible and distinctly indicated. They should not be in the proximity of the high-tension system, nor should it be possible for them to close accidentally. The use of quick-acting, double-pole circuit breakers is recommended. Over-powered fuses should not be used. If more than one apparatus is operated from a common generator, suitable high-tension multi-way switches should be provided. In the case of some of the constant-potential generators, a residual charge is held by the condensers after shutting down. A suitable discharging device should therefore be fitted. Illuminated warning devices which operate when the equipment is "alive" serve a useful purpose. Printed first-aid instructions dealing with electrical shock are available* and the staff should be trained in their use.

28. Some suitable form of kilovoltmeter should be provided to afford a measure of the voltage operating the X-ray tube. Whenever possible a safety spark-gap should be provided.

29. Low flash-point anaesthetics should never be used in conjunction with X-rays.

VI. FILM STORAGE PRECAUTIONS.

30. The use of non-inflammable X-ray films is strongly recommended. In the case of inflammable films, the following precautions should be taken as regards their use and storage.

31. X-ray Rooms.

(a) In all rooms where X-ray films are handled and stored naked lights and open fires should be prohibited. Smoking should be prohibited in or near film cabinets or film stores. Films should not be placed near steam pipes, radiators, or the like. A ready supply of fire extinguishers, together with buckets of water and sand should be available. The best means of extinguishing burning celluloid appears to be by the application of water.

(b) Electric light installations should be of a permanent character. Electric light bulbs in or near film stores or cabinets should be enclosed in strong glass globes.

(c) Generous ventilation should be provided in X-ray rooms. As recommended in paragraph 6, the plan of an independent exhaust fan in each room is to be preferred to a duct system common to a number of rooms. Doors should be arranged to open outwards, particularly from film-drying rooms and dark rooms.

(d) The stock of X-ray films, whether unexposed or developed, should be kept down to the minimum. The stock of film records should be subjected to periodical drastic weeding out. Discarded films should be at once deposited in strong fire-proof metal containers with self-closing lids, and destroyed at frequent intervals. They should not be placed in general refuse bins, or burnt in a closed vessel.

* See, for example, those published by the Electrical Review.

(e) Stocks of unexposed films for immediate use or current files of developed films should be stored in cool and dry lock-up thermally insulated metal or hard-wood cabinets. Such a stock should not exceed a total of about 50 lb. (i.e. about 1,000 12 by 10 in. films) distributed among several cabinets. Cabinets for unexposed films should be lead lined.

(f) Developed films which are temporarily taken into Hospital Wards or Theatres for the convenience of the Medical Staff, should not be left lying about in table drawers or cupboards, but should be kept in suitable metal containers. Such films should be returned to the X-ray department as soon as possible.

32. Film Stores.

Stocks of film exceeding about 50 lb. should not be stored in the X-ray department, but in a special dry, cool, and well-ventilated room reserved exclusively for the purpose. The main requirements of such a room are as follows:—

(a) The situation of the film store should not be such as to endanger the means of escape from any part of a building. The store should not be in the proximity of a lift-shaft or staircase-well, or near an intake or outlet of a general duct-ventilating system. In no circumstances should the store communicate with a general duct-ventilating system.

The store should preferably be an isolated single-storey building with independent access. Failing that, the store may be placed on the roof of a building, or if that is not feasible, in one of the higher stories in as isolated a position as possible.

(b) The walls, floor and ceiling of the store-room should be fireproof and of robust construction. The doors should be fireproof and of a self-closing, closely-fitting type opening outwards. If the store-room forms part of a main building, a useful further precaution is a fireproof vestibule with a second fireproof door.

(c) The store should be provided with a direct vent to the outer air, preferably on the side remote from the most adjacent building. Such a vent should not normally be less than a square foot in effective area, a figure which may require to be exceeded for large stores. The vent may be protected against weather, etc., by thin unwired glass or other equally frail device.

(d) The store may well be equipped with steel cabinets. If the store is designed to carry unusually large stocks of films (exceeding, say, 1 ton), it should be divided into completely isolated fireproof compartments each with its own vent and fireproof door.

(e) The temperature of the store should be maintained at a moderate figure. If the roof is exposed to the sun, suitable thermal lagging may be necessary in hot climates. It seems certain that good quality celluloid does not ignite spontaneously at any temperature attained under ordinary room conditions.

(f) The store should be equipped with an automatic water sprinkler device.

(g) If windows are provided in a film store, they are best situated in a north wall, though other considerations may be more important. Any windows immediately above the windows or vent of the store-room should be provided with wired glass.

VII. X-RAYS FOR INDUSTRIAL AND RESEARCH PURPOSES.

33. The preceding recommendations will probably apply to the majority of conditions under which X-rays are used for industrial and research purposes. Should screening be carried out continuously over long periods the protection afforded should be greater than that specified for hospital practice. In any case the protective arrangements and working hours should be such that the radiation received by the operator does not exceed 0.2 r. per day.

VIII. RADIUM PROTECTIVE RECOMMENDATIONS.*

(A) RADIUM SALTS.

Protection for radium workers is required from the effects of:—

- (a) Beta rays upon the hands;
- (b) Gamma rays upon the internal organs, vascular and reproductive systems.

34. In order to protect the hands from beta rays, reliance should be placed, in the first place, on distance. The radium should be manipulated with long-handled forceps, and should be carried from place to place in long-handled boxes, lined on all sides with at least 1 cm. of lead. All manipulations should be carried out as rapidly as possible.

35. Radium, when not in use, should be stored in a safe as distant as possible from the personnel. It is recommended that the safe should be provided with a number of separate drawers individually protected. The amount of protection should correspond to the values given in the following table. These values, which are based on working conditions where there is proximity to radium, may be reduced for larger working distances.

* See also the National Radium Commission's publication on "The Care and Custody of Radium," p. 289.

Maximum quantity of radium element.	Thickness of lead.
gm.	cm.
0.2	8.5
0.5	10
1.0	11.5
2.0	13
5.0	15
10.0	17

36. A separate room should be provided for the "make-up" of screened tubes and applicators, and this room should only be occupied during such work. The room should be provided with an exhaust fan the control switch for which should be outside the room.

37. In order to protect the body from the penetrating gamma rays during handling of the radium, a screen of not less than 2.5 cm. of lead should be used, and proximity to the radium should only occur during actual work and for as short a time as possible.

38. The measurement room should be a separate room, and it should preferably contain the radium only during its actual measurement.

39. Nurses and attendants should not remain in close proximity to patients undergoing radium treatment with quantities exceeding $\frac{1}{2}$ gm.

40. All unskilled work or work which can be learnt in a short period of time should preferably be carried out by temporary workers, who should be engaged on such work for periods not exceeding six months. This applies especially to nurses and those engaged in "making-up" applicators.

41. Discretion should be exercised in transmitting radium salts by post. In the case of small quantities it is recommended that the container should be lined throughout with lead not less than 3 mm. thick. It is more satisfactory to transport large quantities by hand in a suitably designed carrying case.

(B) RADON (RADIUM EMANATION).

42. In the manipulation of radon, protection against the beta and gamma rays has likewise to be provided.

43. The handling of radon should be carried out, as far as possible, during its relatively inactive state.

44. The escape of radon should be very carefully guarded against and the room in which it is prepared should be provided with an exhaust fan the control switch for which should be outside the room.

45. Where radon is likely to come in direct contact with the fingers, thin rubber gloves should be worn to avoid contamination of the hands with active deposit. Otherwise the protective measures recommended for radium salts should be carried out.

46. The pumping room should preferably be contained in a separate building. The room should be provided with a connecting tube from the special room in which the radium is stored in solution. The radium in solution should be heavily screened to protect people working in adjacent rooms. This is preferably done by placing the radium in solution in a lead-lined enclosure, the thickness of lead recommended being according to the table above.

IX. ELECTRICAL PRECAUTIONS WITH ELECTRO-MEDICAL APPARATUS.*

The advisability of periodic inspection of electro-medical apparatus is strongly recommended.

47. With the exception of diathermy, electro-medical treatment is carried out with apparatus using current either at ordinary mains voltages (100–250 volts, e.g. sources of ultra-violet light, radiant heat baths and thermal pads), or at somewhat lower voltages (10–75 volts, e.g. equipment for galvanic, faradic and sinusoidal currents, etc.). In the case of diathermy apparatus (whether medical or surgical) current at ordinary voltages and frequencies is converted into current at high voltages and very high frequencies. The electrical precautions to be observed depend to some extent on the type of apparatus.

48. Apparatus operated at mains voltages should be shielded as far as may be necessary by earthed metal guards. As regards lower-voltage apparatus the current may be derived from the mains through the intermediary of either: (a) step-down double-wound transformers or motor-generator sets, or (b) potentiometers or rheostats. (a) Has the important advantage of giving electrical isolation. If (b) is used, care should be taken that the patient is connected at the earthed or neutral end of the system, and that connecting plugs are of a type which ensures that the polarity cannot be reversed.

* See also the Ministry of Health's publication (Memo. 161 Med.) on "Precautions against Shock from Electro-medical Apparatus," p. 292.

49. Diathermy apparatus should preferably be of the type in which the output circuit is electrically isolated from the intermediate low-frequency circuit, and in all cases the low frequency side of the apparatus should be enclosed either in an earthed metal enclosure or in one offering good electrical insulation. Spark gaps should be enclosed and adjustment should be effected by insulated handles or the like.

50. Unless there are reasons to the contrary it is in general advisable to restrict earthing to the electro-medical apparatus and to use an insulated support for the patient. A convenient method of earthing is by the use of three-strand cable and three-contact plugs, in which one contact is earthed. Floors should be of an insulating character, and in carrying out treatment in wards with iron bedsteads, care should be taken that the bed does not make contact with heating pipes or the like. Flexible connections used to connect electro-medical apparatus to supply mains should be of the type having thick rubber insulation. Braided "flex" should be avoided.

51. A suitable system of power plugs should be adopted to ensure that apparatus cannot be connected to the wrong supply. Plugs of different sizes, properly labelled and bearing distinguishing colours, should be used for the various supplies, e.g. mains voltage A.C., mains voltage D.C., low voltage A.C., low voltage D.C.

X. ULTRA-VIOLET THERAPY.

52. Almost without exception, the sources of ultra-violet rays are fed from the mains. The apparatus should as far as possible be connected permanently to the mains, but if wall plugs are employed they should be combined with quick release enclosed switches. Tests of polarity of a main circuit should not be entrusted to the nursing staff and, in no circumstances, should they be encouraged to handle open wires leading from the main circuit. All such matters including the coupling up to the lamps, should be done by someone with technical knowledge.

53. Open and closed arcs yielding ultra-violet radiation are dangerous to look at with the naked eye; goggles of proved opacity to ultra-violet rays should be used both by patients and by operators. The opacity can only be proved satisfactorily by a spectroscopic test. Goggles which transmit radiation shorter than 3,800 A.U. should not be used. The nursing staff should be warned of the pigmentation produced by repeated or prolonged exposures to ultra-violet radiation.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF X-RAY AND RADIUM PROTECTION COMMITTEE

Thin muslin worn over the face will prevent pigmentation.

54. Practically the only closed arc used is mercury in a quartz tube. The tube gets hot in action and sometimes cracks with the expulsion of hot mercury. It is recommended that these lamps should not be used for overhead work without some device for catching spilt mercury.

55. The open arcs most used are carbon, carbon-cored and tungsten. There is some danger to patients from small white-hot fragments spurted off open arcs on starting.

56. Ventilation is of great importance because all arcs produce deleterious gases; the open arcs also consume oxygen. The air of rooms devoted to such work should therefore be frequently changed yet adequately warmed, for patients exposed to the rays often have little clothing on. Exhaust fans communicating with an outer wall or chimney shaft are recommended for the purpose.

57. Though the dangers of errors in dosage are not so great as with X-rays or radium, every effort should be made to get some measurement of the rays being administered. There is as yet no agreed unit of ultra-violet energy or standard method of measuring doses of these rays. The use of some simple indicator (photo-chemical or photo-electrical) is recommended as a check on the constancy of emission of the source. It is known that the yield of arc lamps increases proportionately with the power supplied to them, so that the volts and amperes in the circuit should be measured as a first check on the yield of radiation. The quartz in mercury vapour lamps gradually becomes more opaque to ultra-violet radiation, and so it becomes more necessary here to supplement the power observations by some device which will measure the radiation actually emitted by the lamp. Further precautions in the use of mercury lamps are necessary because, after these lamps are started, their output gradually decreases, but then increases to a steady value which may take ten to fifteen minutes to attain. Therapeutic work should, therefore, not be begun until this steady state is reached.

XI. GENERAL.

58. The governing bodies of many institutions where radiological and electro-medical work is carried on may wish to have further guarantees of the general safety of the conditions under which their personnel work. Although the committee believe that an adequate degree of safety would result if the recommendations now put forward were acted upon, they would point out that this is entirely dependent upon the loyal co-operation of the personnel in following the precautionary measures outlined for their benefit.

59. The Protection Committee further draw attention to the facilities which are provided by the National Physical Laboratory, Teddington, for the inspection of X-ray, radium, electro-medical and ultra-violet light departments, the testing of protective materials and equipment, the calibration of dose-meters and the testing of radium and radioactive substances. In particular, when new departments are being planned, the Committee suggest that it will normally be found specially advantageous to call on the services of the Laboratory prior to or at an early stage in the erection of the department. The Reports of the Laboratory are based on the Recommendations of the Committee, with which it works in close co-operation.

60. The Protection Committee will welcome at any time suggestions or information which would tend to improve the scheme of protection outlined in their Recommendations.

THE CARE AND CUSTODY OF RADIUM.*

IN organising a Hospital Radium service, rules and regulations are necessary to ensure :—

- (1) The efficient therapeutic and economic use of Radium.
- (2) The protection of Radium workers.
- (3) The safe custody of Radium.

The safe custody of Radium, in use and not in use, can only be assured if certain essentials in the general equipment are provided; the economic use of Radium can only be obtained if a system is adopted which records the milligramme hours of treatment for which each container has been used; and for the protection of Radium workers suitable equipment must be provided and definite rules and regulations rigorously enforced. In this connection great importance should be attached to the employment of intelligent and instructed lay personnel. The formulation of the following suggestions for Rules and Regulations are to a large extent based on those in force in London Hospitals, more particularly St. Bartholomew's Hospital, The Middlesex Hospital, and The Cancer Hospital.

It should, however, be recognised that these may not be applicable to all Radium centres and that modification may be necessary to meet local circumstances.

An indicator system such as the one outlined ensures a double check on the issue of all Radium containers. It is also a method of quickly ascertaining the amount of Radium and its distribution in the safe, thus avoiding unnecessary exposure of the Radium worker. In addition, the amount of Radium and its distribution throughout the hospital is clearly shown.

GENERAL EQUIPMENT.

Radium Safe.

The Radium Safe should be constructed so that the Radium Assistant is never exposed to the full radiation of the whole stock of Radium, whilst removing Radium Containers from the safe.

The St. Bartholomew's Hospital pattern makes provision for this by means of a series of drawers in lead blocks. The safe should give a minimum filtration of 6 inches of lead in every direction. There are obvious advantages in placing such a lead safe in a fire-proof room, with a fire-proof door, but if such is not available the lead safe can be built into an ordinary fire-proof safe. This meets the requirements of the Insurance Companies.

Ward Lockers.

Ward Lockers are necessary in all units in which Radium is to be used so that Radium issued to a Department and not in use can be safely stored in these lockers.

The key should be in charge of the Ward Sister.

Radium Carriers.

There are various forms of Radium Carriers. These should give a minimum filtration of 1 cm. of lead and should be designed so that they are carried by long handles. The carrier when taken to the Ward should be placed in the Radium Locker.

Radium Bench.

In order to ensure adequate protection to Radium workers all Radium manipulations should be carried out on a properly constructed lead-lined bench. The type illustrated is used in the Radium Belge Laboratories in Brussels and gives adequate protection and facilities for easy manipulation of Radium Containers.

The surface of the table is covered with plate glass and there is a rack for instruments.

Accessory Apparatus.

A simple microscope of the Barts † or Kaye ‡ pattern for examining and identifying Radium Containers is necessary as are also various types of forceps and wooden needle holders.

GENERAL RULES FOR THE CARE AND CUSTODY OF RADIUM.

1. The Radium shall be in the care and custody of the Radium Custodian, who may be Radiologist/Physicist/Radium Officer to the Hospital.

THE CARE AND CUSTODY OF RADIUM

2. When not in use it shall be kept in the Main Safe.

3. The key to the Main Safe shall be in charge of the Custodian. A duplicate key shall be in charge of the Secretary to the Hospital.

4. Radium shall only be issued on the instructions of the Custodian and to approved persons.

5. Radium shall not be left in any Department until a signed receipt for it has been obtained from the Sister-in-Charge or her deputy.

6. Radium Containers requisitioned but not required for treatment or those removed from a patient in any Department shall be placed in the Ward Locker and immediate notice given to the Radium Department.

RULES FOR THE CARE AND CUSTODY OF RADIUM IN WARDS AND OPERATING THEATRES.

1. No mercurial solution or iodine to be placed in contact with Radium Containers.

No plasters containing metallic salts to be used on sites to which Radium is being applied or to which it will be applied.

Radium Containers to be sterilised by boiling in plain water (without soda).

2. In the interests of the Nursing Staff, no Sister or Nurse shall be allowed to manipulate Radium over a period of more than three consecutive months. After this period at least two years shall elapse before she shall again be allowed to manipulate Radium.

3. The Radium Containers should not be held in the fingers but only with special forceps. Rubber gloves should be worn whenever practicable.

Radium Containers should only be inserted by means of special forceps or introducers. They must not be held by pressure forceps of the ordinary type.

4. Dressings from a patient carrying Radium must be carefully inspected before being destroyed.

In lesions of the alimentary tract and on special instructions all discharges and excreta should be carefully examined before being thrown away.

5. Radium Containers, on removal from the patient, must be at once placed in the Radium Carrier which, in turn, must be placed in the Ward Locker, and the Ward Sister or her deputy notify the Radium Department. Radium Applicators used intermittently during any given treatment must be kept in the Ward Locker when not in use.

In the case of a Radium Container becoming displaced the responsible surgeon must be informed at once.

In the event of loss of Radium the Custodian must be informed immediately.

6. Patients under treatment with Radium liable to displacement shall not be allowed to leave their beds except for transfer to the Operating Theatre or X-ray Department, and then only when in charge of a nurse.

7. A card with the word RADIUM in large red letters should be attached to the bed of all patients with Radium in or applied to them.

8. Patients shall not be permitted to leave the Hospital with Radium attached.

9. In case a Radium Container is missing :—

- (a) Immediately inform the Radium Officer of the suspected loss.
- (b) Allow Ward fire to die out. Do not disturb ashes.
- (c) Do not sweep floors or disturb furniture, sinks, sluices, etc.
- (d) If an X-ray examination is necessary, see that all the patient's clothing is changed before leaving the Ward. Preserve the clothing carefully.
- (e) No dressings or laundry must leave the Ward, nor dustbins be emptied until further instructions are received.
- (f) Steps should immediately be taken to damp down hospital incinerator fires, and search should be made in the suspected neighbourhood with a sensitive electroscope.

INDICATOR SYSTEM.

Where a large number of Radium Containers are in use it is possible by means of a check system to indicate :—

1. The amount of Radium and its distribution in the safe.

2. The amount of Radium and its distribution throughout the Hospital.

For this Indicator Boards and discs are necessary :—

1. Indicator Board No. 1 in Radium Office.
2. Distribution Board in Radium Office.
3. Indicator Board No. 2 adjoining safe.

(Where the safe is situated at some distance from the Radium Office, two Indicator Boards are required.)

THE CARE AND CUSTODY OF RADIUM

Indicator Boards.

These Boards are divided into squares.

Each square represents a drawer in the safe and is furnished with pegs.

The coloured discs representing the Radium Containers in the various safe drawers, are placed on the pegs in the corresponding squares. One colour is used for Indicator Board No. 1 and another colour for Indicator Board No. 2.

Distribution Board.

The Distribution Board in the Radium Office is divided into squares representing each unit in the Hospital in which Radium may be used. It is also furnished with pegs.

Discs.

Each Radium Container bears its own registration number and markings, and is represented by two discs of different colours, bearing identical markings. Those on Indicator Board No. 1 in the Radium Office are white and those on Indicator Board No. 2 adjoining the safe are red.

Revised July, 1932.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST SHOCK FROM ELECTRO-MEDICAL APPARATUS.

(Memo. 161 Med. issued by the Ministry of Health.)

THE number of serious accidents from the use of electro-medical apparatus has so far been extremely small, but two factors seem likely to increase the risk of such accidents in the future. First, the ever-growing number of new medical appliances introduced each year, in which current from the main electric supply is utilised; and, secondly, the tendency for hospitals and institutions generally to change from their own direct current supplies of comparatively low voltage to the standard alternating current of 230 volts. Industrial experience * shows that as regards the risk of serious shock, alternating currents are far more dangerous than direct currents.

Careful attention to the following points should go far to minimise the risk of accident:—

1. Old apparatus.—Old and improperly insulated apparatus is in itself a grave source of danger.

2. The electrical treatment of patients in bed.—It is essential that the iron bedstead † should by no possibility be in such a position as to act as a means of “earthing” the patient, that is, it should not be in contact with any earthed metal, e.g., heating or water pipes, radiators, or even an “earthed” wireless receiver. The increasing use of radiant heat baths, resuscitation cradles, thermal pads for eye and ear work, and similar appliances receiving current in direct connection with the main current supply, necessitates increased precaution lest the patient be accidentally “earthed”; patients undergoing treatment should be out of range of accidental contact with “earthed” metal, such as radiators.

Where apparatus of non-earth-free type (i.e., not insulated from mains) is in use, it is undesirable that patients undergoing treatment simultaneously in the same room or ward should be within reach of each other.

It is important to secure that treatment rooms

* On industrial premises thirty fatalities due to shock from alternating currents at between 200 and 250 volts have occurred during the past five years, as compared with one due to direct currents of similar voltages.

† The necessity for these precautions (1 and 2) is illustrated by a recent fatality. A patient, in bed in a hospital ward, was receiving treatment to the leg from a radiant heat bath of the ordinary metal type. In this a metal frame carried metal lamp-holders on metal brackets, and moreover these were fixed in such a way that by long use or accident the fastenings of 7 out of 8 brackets had become loose, causing failure of insulation and rendering the metal case “live.” No shock was felt, however, until the patient, sweating from the effect of the treatment, grasped the iron bedstead, which happened to be in contact with a hot-water pipe, and was electrocuted. The current was alternating 50 cycles and 230 volts.

are not so crowded with apparatus that these precautions are impossible.

3. Earthing.—Under conditions which probably obtain in many wards, it may well be that electrical safety is best secured by insulating electrical apparatus instead of adopting the alternative method of earthing it. Thus, in wards where the floor is of wood and there is little likelihood of contact with earthed metal, preference should be given to the use of reading lamps constructed of wood rather than of metal.

In other situations, however, where there are conducting floors or earthed metal, the metal work of electrical apparatus should be earthed, and care taken to ensure the efficiency and maintenance of the earth connections.

In bath rooms or wash rooms the use of any portable apparatus, or apparatus fixed within reach from the bath or basin, should be avoided.

4. Electric pads.—The source of supply for heat treatment by electro-thermal compresses should always be at low voltage. If direct current mains supply is used, a reduction in voltage may be effected by the provision of a motor generator, whilst with alternating current, double-wound transformers, if necessary of a type tapped for regulation, should be interpolated between the source of supply and the patient.

5. Wireless headphones.—In cases where patients wearing headphones may be undergoing electrical treatment, or may handle electrical apparatus, it is desirable that consideration should be given to the insulation of the output circuit to which the headphones are connected, which can be easily effected by a double-wound isolating transformer. This recommendation also provides against the headphone circuits being alive at the pressure applied to the anode of the last amplifying valve of the wireless set.

6. Radiant heat baths.—These should be constructed as follows:—

- (1) An internal mesh screen should be fitted to cover and protect the lamps and holders.
- (2) The lampholders should be of insulating material, of heat-resisting character.
- (3) Metal work should be earthed.

7. Projectors for light treatment.—These possess the common feature of exposure of live conductors within the reflectors, and there is similar exposure with the use of arc lamps. Whilst it is unlikely that live parts would be touched whilst such apparatus is in use, there is some risk to the operator which could be minimised by the provision of mesh guards. In the case of projectors designed for use on industrial premises (bakeries) it has been found possible to incorporate such guards.

Earthing of the metal work of projectors is desirable.

8. Sets for generating electricity (as Galvanic, Faradic and Sinusoidal currents).—These are usually energised from the service mains, and for purposes of electrical safety may be considered to fall into two groups. In the first, a method of construction known as "earth free" is adopted, which, in effect, isolates the circuits with which the patient may be in contact from the main supply circuit. Electric shock at mains pressure would be possible only if a breakdown of insulation between the two systems occurred, and in good class apparatus the design is such that it would appear that there is no great risk of this occurring.

In the second group, however, electrical isolation from the mains supply is not effected. The earlier British-made sets, with some present-day Continental types, come within this category, and it is likely that this type of equipment is in use in a number of clinics. Potentiometer control is often incorporated, and a breakage of the resistance winding might result in the patient being exposed to mains pressure.

In many cases the mains supply to apparatus would be derived by means of a flexible cable and plug connector, and thus although initial care may have been taken that the plug is so inserted as to ensure that the circuit to the patient is at the neutral or earthed end of the potentiometer, a reversal of the plug or of the flexible conductor would mean that the application to the patient would be at mains pressure. If the patient should touch earthed metal under such conditions the consequences may be serious.

It is also desirable that all possible steps should be taken to guard against interruption of the current whilst the patient is under application. Whilst current up to considerable densities may flow without appreciable discomfort, provided efficient contacts are made, the consequences of sudden interruption such as might be caused by a fuse blowing, a bad contact in a plug fitting, or a breakage in a flexible connection would certainly lead to shock, under some conditions, of a severe character.

Other examples of apparatus within this class are cautery burners and cavity lamps connected to sources of main supply through resistance windings. In both cases the effect of open circuiting or of earthing the patient may be serious.

In general, it is considered that the use of sets of the second group, i.e., those which are not isolated electrically from the source of main supply, should be deprecated.

9. Apparatus for diathermy treatment.—These may also be divided into two groups. In the first the patient is subjected to a relatively low voltage high frequency current, and in the second to a minute current supplied at very high pressure and frequency. Whilst in both cases the necessary transformation effects isolation of the patient from the mains, there is an intermediate low frequency circuit operating at pressures ranging from 2,000 to 6,000 volts in which there may be sufficient electrical energy to cause severe electric shock. This intermediate circuit is, in some designs, isolated from the patient's circuit, but it would appear that such electrical separation is not invariably adopted. Where there is no isolation there would be an element of risk to the patient under certain rather remote conditions. In both cases it would be dangerous for the operator to attempt an adjustment or repair of the apparatus whilst live, and it is suggested that a preference should be evinced for designs in which :—

- (1) The patient's circuit is electrically isolated from the intermediate (or spark gap) circuit;
- (2) The spark gap is mounted inside the cabinet or enclosure containing the apparatus;
- (3) The door of the cabinet or enclosure is so interlocked with the source of main supply as to ensure that the latter is disconnected when the door is opened.

10. Systematic inspection.—Regular and systematic inspection by competent experts should be made of all electro-medical apparatus to ensure the maintenance of efficient insulation, so that there is no breakdown through which the voltage of the main supply can reach the metallic body of the apparatus. Insulated wiring usually breaks down at connections (plugs and holders), and these should be specially protected (e.g., by properly fitted spiral springs, etc.). These connections should also be inspected with special care and frequency. Certain manufacturers have organised a maintenance service for electro-medical apparatus in clinics and hospitals.

It is specially advised that the above points should be borne in mind when the purchase of new apparatus is under consideration.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF PROVIDENT ASSOCIATIONS FOR INSTITUTIONAL MEDICAL TREATMENT.

THE remarkable expansion of the contributory scheme movement in recent years is evidence of the strong desire of the wage-earning classes generally to make proper provision for the cost of hospital maintenance and treatment. It is recognised that this movement cannot meet the needs of a considerable section of the public, who, although above the ordinary hospital income limits, are not able to pay the full charges for institutional or nursing home services and the associated medical or surgical costs.

A number of organisations have been created in various parts of the country to meet this position. Recently the British Medical Association convened a conference of representatives of contributory and provident schemes at which the problems were examined and a new and detailed scheme prepared. The matter is of considerable interest and we give the following details of the scheme.

The aim of a Provident Association as defined in this memorandum is to organise and develop a scheme for persons of the middle and professional classes on a mutual insurance basis, and in return for a definite premium to offer to persons of defined income limits financial assistance in respect of:—

(a) the cost of co-operating institutional accommodation in private beds attached to voluntary or council hospitals or in beds in nursing homes, this cost to include all nursing, use of operation theatre, X-ray plant, laboratory and other ordinary institutional equipment; and

(b) the cost of associated professional services.

The scheme emphasises:

(a) That Provident Associations should be organised on an insurance basis, and that care should be taken to maintain them actuarially sound. The risk undertaken should be a purely financial one, and there should be a definite maximum liability on Provident Associations in respect of each year of membership. It is also important to note that there must be considerable financial risk if a Provident Association is established with a relatively small membership. It is recognised that many Provident Associations will desire to offer a "grant-in-aid" towards the cost of these services to persons above the defined income limits, or to persons of all incomes, but this type of Provident Association is not referred to in this scheme.

(b) That the schemes of Provident Associations should be considered and developed in the closest association with local units of the British Medical Association in order to ensure that the medical profession should be remunerated for services rendered to persons within the defined income groups on the basis of a schedule of agreed charges;

(c) That as far as possible persons should be admitted to the benefits of the scheme only on the recommendation of a private practitioner, except in cases of emergency; and

(d) That Provident Associations should not be linked with particular hospitals or nursing homes or interlocked with hospital contributory schemes, but should remain separate financial and legal entities. They could, where considered desirable, be related to contributory or analogous schemes for purely administrative purposes.

The scheme includes the following notes on financial aspects:—

Income Limits. These should be the subject of special consideration and negotiation in each area. The following scales are suggested, subject to economic and local variations and to periodic revision:—

Limits of Income outside Metropolitan Area.

Class I. Members without dependants	350
Class II. Members with one dependant	425
Class III. Members with more than one dependant	500

Limits of Income for Metropolitan Area.

Class I. Members without dependants	375
Class II. Members with one dependant	475
Class III. Members with more than one dependant	550

Rates of Contribution. The rates of contribution below are suggested as likely to attract subscribers and at the same time to produce a sufficient income to allow of reasonable scales of payment to institutions and the medical profession. Rates of contribution and the amounts payable to institutions and medical practitioners are interdependent, and should be the subject of special consideration and negotiation in each area.

Class II members	2 12 0
Class III members	3 0 0

PROVIDENT ASSOCIATIONS FOR INSTITUTIONAL MEDICAL TREATMENT

Contributions are payable annually, half-yearly, or quarterly as desired by the members. The Provident Association may impose special terms as to rates of membership in certain cases—for example, for persons over certain ages.

The calculations which follow are based on the limited experience which is available in existing schemes. On the basis of 10,000 membership it is estimated that the average number of members claiming benefit for themselves or their dependants each year would be 600, and the average cost per claim would be between £30 and £34. The annual income of 10,000 members is estimated on the rate of contribution given above to be between £22,000 and £25,000, of which £9,000 would go to hospitals and institutions for maintenance and between £9,500 and £10,000 in fees for medical service. The administrative expenses should not in the initial period of the scheme exceed 10 per cent. of the income. A claims reserve fund should be created, and at least 5 per cent. of the income should be transferred to this fund. In general it is believed that the estimated sum of £30 to £34 per claim can be made available on rates of contribution which will prove attractive to the class of person for which provident schemes are intended. This figure will permit an average payment for medical services of £16 per case. This average figure could be maintained whatever method of distribution is negotiated with the medical profession. One possible schedule of charges is given below :—

(1) Surgical Cases (Operative). Operations are classified into three groups, and the surgeon receives £25, £15, or £7 according to the group into which the operation falls. For example :—

Group 1 contains major operations.

Group 2 intermediate operations.

Group 3 minor operations and investigations.

The anæsthetic fees for the three groups, 2 guineas, 1½ guineas, and 1 guinea respectively, are to be paid in addition to the surgeon's fee. No additional fee will be paid for any services rendered by the surgeon in the prescribed period in the institution. The incidence of the three groups is believed to be such that an average fee of 12½ guineas per operation will be paid to the surgeon.

(2) Medical Cases and Non-operative Surgical Cases. A fee of 5 guineas per week (1 guinea per day for periods of not more than five days, with a minimum of 3 guineas) with a maximum fee of 15 guineas.

Note. Fees will not be payable under (1) and (2) in any one illness. It is recognised that in many cases it will be necessary to call in for consultation purposes other medical practitioners. Provision can be made in the scheme for payment of the consultants thus called in with a maximum liability of 3 guineas—for consultation purposes, with a total maximum of expenditure under (1) and (2) and in respect of the internal consultation fee of £25. Alternatively, it may be decided that the consultation fee should be paid from the fee payable to the physician and surgeon under (1) and (2).

(3) Radiologist's fee. At scheduled rates, with a maximum of 3 guineas.

(4) Pathologist's fee. At scheduled rates, with a maximum of 2 guineas.

Institutional Fees. It is tentatively suggested that the hospital or nursing home benefit should be the inclusive cost of maintenance in a paying bed of a hospital or in a nursing home approved by the Provident Association at a rate not exceeding £5 per week for a maximum period of three weeks in any one year of membership. These figures have been taken as the basis of the foregoing calculations.

Until a wider experience is gained limitations are essential, and in suggesting a period of three weeks it has been borne in mind that the average period of stay in hospital is eighteen days.

Notes on the Establishment and Development of Provident Associations together with draft Memorandum and Articles of a Provident Association, are obtainable on application to the Medical Secretary, British Medical Association, Tavistock Square, London, W.C. 1.

TREATMENT OF VOLUNTARY MENTAL PATIENTS

The National Council for Mental Hygiene have drawn up the following recommendations for the treatment of Voluntary Patients under the Mental Treatment Act, 1930. These recommendations have been issued following the consideration of the subject by a number of Committees, on which were: Medical Superintendents of Mental Hospitals, past and present; Assistant Medical Officers of Mental Hospitals; Psycho-therapists of various schools; Mental Hospital Visitors; Justices of the Peace; Social Workers.

It is hoped that the recommendation may be regarded as a serious contribution from both professional and lay stand-points.

1. The Mental Hospital can afford treatment facilities for the Voluntary Patient, provided there is available a special Treatment Unit, detached from the main hospital buildings.
2. Successful treatment depends upon the construction and the adequate medical staffing of the Treatment Unit.
3. It is essential that this Treatment Unit should be so arranged that suitable grading of patients is ensured, in other words, that the disturbed patient should not be in proximity to the patient in need of rest and quiet.
4. Only patients who are accessible to active remedial treatment, psychological or physical, should be permitted to reside in the Treatment Unit.
5. The medical officer in charge of the treatment should be a senior man or woman fully qualified to carry out modern methods of treatment, both psychological and physical. In order that his energies may not be dissipated, he should neither have to supervise the welfare of chronic patients nor be burdened with administrative duties. Moreover, he should be supported in his therapeutic activities by assistants, preferably part-time.
6. It would be inexpedient at present to provide accommodation for the Voluntary Patients other than at the Treatment Unit of the Mental Hospital.
7. The provision of well-constructed, well-staffed Treatment Units will help to break down the popular prejudice which still exists in relation to Mental Hospitals.
8. In any discussion of the Voluntary Patient it should always be kept in mind that included in this category are psychotic patients who, were it not for the Mental Treatment Act, would require to be certified.
9. It is recognised that although in a few Mental Hospitals these principles are applied, in general they are not adopted throughout the country, and it is considered advisable, therefore, to advocate that propaganda should be developed to achieve their acceptance and practice.
10. The Treatment Unit within the Mental Hospital should be regarded as a practical solution of the Voluntary Patient problem for the time being, but should not be considered as necessarily permanent and final.
11. It is suggested that every university town should endeavour to establish a teaching hospital under the control of a part-time director who should be Professor of Psychiatry at the University.

CREMATION INFORMATION and PROCEDURE

◀ CREMATION SAFEGUARDS THE LIVING and Provides for the Disposal of the Dead with REVERENCE, SIMPLICITY, PURITY and ECONOMY ▶

THERE are no class or religious distinctions and the ceremony is conducted under cover, thus avoiding the dangers and discomfort of attending grave-side funerals.

At many of the 29 Crematoria established in populous provincial centres, special reductions are made in the case of persons of limited means, N.H. Insured and those dying in Public Hospitals and Institutions, and in London the cost including service and disposal of ashes in the beautiful Garden of Rest does not exceed £6 15s. 6d.

§ STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS.—The Home Secretary's Regulations under Sec. 7, Cremation Act, require, inter alia, (a) Death to be registered except where an inquest has been held; (b) application to be made in Form A by relative or exor. and the required particulars confirmed by statutory declaration; (c) a certificate in Form B given by the doctor who attended the deceased in last illness; (d) a confirmatory certificate in Form C given by a doctor of not less than five years' standing; (e) where an inquest is held the Coroner's order for Cremation on the prescribed form must be obtained, in which case Forms B and C are not required.

§ ARRANGING CREMATION.—The statutory forms mentioned above may be obtained from the nearest Cremation Authority, or from the Undertaker, who will make the funeral arrangements in the usual way. Subject to the legal requirements being complied with, there is no difficulty in arranging for cremation within a few days of death at less or no greater expense than ordinary earth burial.

§ CREMATION FACILITIES.—Crematoria are established in Birkenhead, Birmingham, Bradford, Bristol, Brighton, Darlington, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Guernsey, Hull, Ipswich, London (four), Liverpool, Leicester, Leeds, Manchester, Nottingham, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Plymouth, Pontypridd, Reading, Sheffield, Southampton, Stockport and Woking. The Crematoria are provided with spacious chapels for the accommodation of those attending and every facility for religious services of any denomination; avoiding many of the distressing features of burial.

§ ENQUIRIES.—Full particulars regarding the arrangements and charges at any Crematorium, or general information regarding cremation will be forwarded free to Hospital Officials and others by

The Cremation Society, 23 Nottingham Place, London, W.1

Founded 1861 — Incorporated by Royal Charter 1899

In the British Home and Hospital for Incurables at Streatham, a vital work of mercy is going on. It is the compassionate work of ministering to 100 middle-class men and women stricken with incurable diseases. Some are in pain, others enfeebled by years of suffering, all dependent on others for their home and existence. It is incumbent on us to make up their grievous loss of health, position and independence by careful treatment and sympathy.

This gallant work must not be hindered, nor one of 300 pensioners deprived of an allowance of 10/- per week, by lack of subscriptions.

Recent rebuilding has provided for 4 new beds. New and increased subscriptions are urgently needed to meet an additional cost of £600 for building and annual maintenance.

Hospital Pathological Service

After some 40 years' experience in carrying out routine and special pathological investigations for many hundreds of Hospitals and similar Institutions, a highly efficient Hospital Pathological Service has been developed by

THE CLINICAL RESEARCH ASSOCIATION.

The organised team-work of experts in all branches of Pathology enables the examination of specimens to be carried out at a moderate cost and with the minimum delay consistent with accuracy, whilst the large amount of material received daily by the Association permits of elaborate investigations being performed as ordinary routine work.

The cost of the service will be found to compare favourably with the capital charges, running expenses and salaries for a smaller and less efficient laboratory organisation. All the necessary apparatus for the collection and transmission of specimens is provided.

Any further information as to the working and cost of the scheme will be forwarded on application to :

MISS SMALLWOOD'S SOCIETY FOR THE ASSISTANCE OF LADIES IN REDUCED CIRCUMSTANCES

Under Royal Patronage

"THEIR WORKS DO FOLLOW THEM"

LEGACIES

THERE are many people whose sympathies are with "poor ladies" and who long to help them and to make their narrow lives less sordid, but who are unable to do so for lack of present means.

Legacies of £10, £20, £50 and upwards to thousands of pounds are very useful and gratefully received.

This Society was begun over 47 years ago by asking for shillings. The donations yearly increase by asking not only for shillings, but for pounds. Over 300 poor ladies are helped by monthly pensions, and many others are very glad of orders for plain or fancy needlework. Boxes can be sent on approval by post.

Please make cheques and orders payable to Miss Smallwood's Society.

There are many different avenues to the Degree of M.A. (Honours and Ordinary), the graduation subjects embracing English, History, Modern Languages, Science, etc., besides Ancient Languages, Philosophy, Mathematics, &c. The wide scope of the Arts Curriculum permits of the combination of Arts, Science, Medical, Law, or Special Studies; and it has been shown by successes of Edinburgh students in the Civil Service Examinations that it is possible to combine study for Degrees in Arts, Science or Law with preparation for these and other Special Examinations. In addition to the Ordinary and Honours Degrees in Arts, the Higher Degrees of D.Litt., D.Sc., and Ph.D. are conferred. The Degree of Bachelor of Education is conferred on candidates who have attended courses and passed Examinations in Psychology and in Education (Theoretical and Practical). Diplomas in Education, in Geography, in Actuarial Mathematics, in Social Study, in French, in German, in Spanish and in English Language are granted. There are also Diplomas in Technical Chemistry and in Agriculture. There are fully equipped Science Laboratories, and other necessary appliances, in all these Departments. The curriculum in Divinity affords a thorough training in Theological subjects, and the Degree of Bachelor of Divinity (B.D.) is conferred. The Law Faculty, besides furnishing the professional equipment necessary for those intending to practise in Scotland, contains Chairs in Jurisprudence and Public International Law, Constitutional Law and Constitutional History, Roman Law, and Political Economy, as also Lectureships in other important branches of Law, and is thus adapted for students preparing for the Civil Service Examinations, and for legal, political, and administrative appointments generally. The Degrees of Bachelor of Laws (LL.B.) and Bachelor of Law (B.L.) are conferred. The Faculty of Medicine has a full curriculum in Medicine and Surgery, and is equipped with very extensive Laboratories, and all other necessary appliances for Practical Teaching. Ample facilities are afforded for Clinical Instruction at the Royal Infirmary, Maternity Hospital, Royal Hospital for Sick Children, Hospital for Infectious Diseases and Royal Edinburgh Hospital for Mental Disorders. Four Degrees in Medicine and Surgery are conferred by the University, viz.: Bachelor of Medicine (M.B.), Bachelor of Surgery (Ch.B.), Doctor of Medicine (M.D.), and Master of Surgery (Ch.M.); and these Degrees qualify for practice throughout His Majesty's Dominions, and for admission to the Naval, Military, and other Public Medical Services in the United Kingdom. A Diploma in Tropical Medicine and Hygiene (D.T.M. & H.) is conferred on Graduates in Medicine of the University, and specially approved Medical Practitioners who have resided abroad. There are also Diplomas in Public Health (D.P.H.), in Psychiatry (Dipl. Psych.), in Radiology (D.R.), and in Tropical Veterinary Medicine; in Music there is a full course of study for graduation, and the Degrees of Mus.B. and Mus.D. are conferred.

The University Staff consists of 59 Professors, about 160 Readers and Lecturers, and over 90 Assistants and Demonstrators. The annual amount available for Fellowships, Scholarships, Bursaries, Prizes, etc., is about £30,000. Facilities are afforded for research in scientific and other subjects.

Women may attend the Classes in all the Faculties, and they are admitted to all the Degrees.

Information regarding Matriculation, the Curricula of Study for Degrees, etc., the Examinations for Fellowships, Scholarships, etc., may be obtained from the DEANS OF THE FACULTIES, or from the SECRETARY OF THE UNIVERSITY; and full details are given in the University Calendar, published by Mr. JAMES THIN, 55 South Bridge, Edinburgh—price 6s. by post. The Preliminary and Degree Examination papers in each of the Faculties are also published by Mr. JAMES THIN, viz.: Preliminary Examinations, 1s.; Arts Bursaries, 6d.; Degree Papers: Arts, 1s.; Science, 1s.; Law and Medicine, 6d. each; Divinity and Music, 6d. each.

The aims of the Bureau, which is carried on under the auspices of The British Hospitals Association, the Joint Council of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society and the Incorporated Association of Hospital Officers, may be summarised as follows:—

To publish annually a "Hospitals Year-Book" containing a directory of hospitals in Great Britain together with a report giving particulars of the work done, finances, etc.;

To collect and summarise data concerning all matters of administrative interest to those engaged in hospital management;

To undertake enquiries with the object of obtaining facts for those responsible for guiding hospital policy;

To establish a library where books, pamphlets and diagrams dealing with matters of hospital administration, construction and equipment may be consulted;

To act as a Clearing House of information in order that the experience of all may be at the service of each.

The Committee of the Bureau welcome enquiries and would ask Administrators to let them know at once the subjects of importance upon which they believe collated information would be helpful, both to themselves and to others engaged in hospital work.
